LAVAL TRIES TO ORGANIZE NEW CABINET

Selected by President Doumergue After Senator Barthou Fails

FACES DELICATE TASK Religious Issue Raises New Obstacle on Already Rough Road

Paris (AP)—Senator Pierre Laval, characterized by Clemenceau as one of the most brilliant members of the chamber of deputies of the Tiger's day, today was given a mandate by President Doumergue to form a new French government.

His selection to head a ministry was made only after Senator Louis Barthou, himself a man more of Poincaré type, gave up the task as hopeless when the Radical Socialists refused to participate in a government which included a representative of the strong rightist, Louis Marin.

M. Laval told M. Doumergue that he would do his best and give him a definite answer tomorrow. He proceeded then to the traditional visits to political leaders such as the president of the senate and chamber, M. Tardieu, Briand and Poincaré.

The new premier-designate is an independent Socialist who as minister of labor M. Tardieu recently secured into public favor by cooperating with Louis Loucheur in getting through the social assurance law of pensions for working people and settling the textile strikes in the north of France.

He is a lawyer, and after successful service in the chamber was elected to the senate in 1926 from the department of the Seine. He is the mayor of Aubervilliers, near Paris, and enjoys the friendship and confidence of both Tardieu and Briand. He is 56 years old.

RELIGION IN SCHOOLS

Senator Barthou's failure to organize a ministry of "wide republicanism," which would have included the radical left and republican group of the center and right is regarded as evading the European difficulties in fashioning a cabinet with present membership of the chamber and senate. It is regarded also as demonstrating that the religious question is not dead in France, the Radical Socialists at the last moment refusing to sit in the cabinet with a member of a group which advocates religious teaching in public schools.

The Radical Socialist party has long committed to scrupulous adherence to a law inaugurated by Jules Ferry that the schools of the republic be devoid of any form of religious instruction. A section of the right group in the chamber, led by M. Marin, has favored an amendment to the law and Barthou proposed to put a member of that group in the cabinet.

REPORT RUSSIAN TROOPS ON CHINESE TERRITORY

Shanghai (AP)—Kuo Min, National government news agency, tonight published reports from the northwest Manchurian frontier saying Russian troops near Manchuli in the last few days had "entered Chinese territory and arrested a few Chinese." The reports further said the Russians "ignored protests made by local Chinese authorities."

Kuo Min also reported Manchurian advances as saying "the Russians have dug a trench ten miles long near Manchuli, within Manchuria. Soviet forces along the northern Manchurian frontier also are reported to have been increased."

Advices indicating China and Russia had again come to grips in the negotiations for settlement of the Chinese Eastern railway question came from the Manchurian frontier Oct. 29 when Russian military activity was reported in that area. The railway, operated jointly by the two countries has been an element of contention for more than a year.

NAVY PROGRAM LAID BEFORE HOUSE GROUP

Construction Under London Treaty to Cost $134,635,000, Estimate

Washington (AP)—The senate today passed and sent to the house the $300,000,000 battleship modernization bill offered by Senator Reed, Republican, Pennsylvania, one of the delegates to the London naval conference.

Washington (AP)—The administration's first program for construction under the London naval treaty was laid today before the house naval committee by Secretary Adams. It was estimated to cost $134,635,000.

It calls for the construction of one 7,500 ton six inch gun cruiser at a cost of $16,600,000; one six inch gun flying deck cruiser of 10,000 tons to cost $20,780,000; four submarines of 1,100 tons each to cost $4,400,000 each or a total of $17,600,000; one plane carrier of 1,800 tons to cost $27,650,000; ten destroyers of 1,500 tons each to cost $4,500,000 each and one destroyer leader of 1,850 tons to cost $6,000,000.

Adams said the program was exclusive of the proposed modernization of the battleships Mississippi, Idaho and New Mexico at a cost of $80,000,000, approved today by the senate.

Chairman Britten, of the committee, said Secretary Adams declared it essential that the $50,000,000 naval dirigible base be built on the west coast to accommodate one of the two giant airships being constructed for the navy. The hearing was in closed session.

Britten said Admiral Pratt, Assistant Secretary Ingalls, and Rear Admiral Parsons, unanimously favored the proposed site at Sunnyvale on San Francisco bay for the dirigible base.

USED DIRIGIBLE

The chairman said that during the London naval conference the United States had been granted the use of the dirigible Los Angeles for military training purposes in connection with fleet operations.

Under the treaty of Versailles, Britten said, the Los Angeles, which was given to this country by Germany after the World war, was restricted to non-military activities.

Britten will introduce a bill tomorrow to carry out Adams' recommendations. While the outlay toward construction would amount to about $15,000,000 during the next fiscal year, he said the administration would be expected to come forward at the next session of congress for its second year program.

Britten said the navy wanted to let the contractors for constructing four new submarines, ten destroyers and the plane carrier on July 1, 1931.

It also desires to let the contractors for the destroyer leader Oct. 1, 1931, for the flying deck cruiser Jan. 1, 1932, and the contract for the six inch gun cruiser of 7,500 tons on April 1, 1932.

Secretary Adams stressed the modernization of the three battleships as the most important now pending before congress. He requested that funds be supplied at this session to undertake the modernization next year. About $20,000,000 would be needed and it would require about a year and a half to complete each ship.

"Millionaire Newsboy" Is Killed In Bomb Explosion

Chicago (AP)—An explosion of a powerful bomb, contained in an innocent looking package opened by a boy to satisfy his juvenile curiosity, caused the death early today of Tony May, professional bondsman and money lender, one time known as the "millionaire newsboy." May was 64 years old today and it is thought he believed the package a birthday gift.

May died in a hospital to which his 15-year-old son Eugene, who opened the package, was also taken, severely injured by the blast which wrecked the May apartment yesterday. He suffered a score of wounds throughout the entire 40-apartment building, situated in Lincoln-ave, were shattered.

Police were working on two theories. One was that May, an Italian immigrant who worked his way up from a newsboy's start, may have been the victim of extortionists. The other was based on his money lending business. During a few moments of consciousness he gave the police the name of a man whose wages he had garnished to collect a loan and who was reported to have made threats.

Although the package reached the May apartment last Thursday by messenger, it was not opened until yesterday when the boy, who lives with his mother in another home in the same building, urged his father to open it, thinking it contained Christmas presents.

"Why don't you open it, pop?" he asked.

May, however, absorbed in his work, paid no attention and the lad removed the wrapper, revealing a pushed back the sliding cover. Smoke came from the opening. The youth dropped back and his father picked up the package just as the explosion occurred.

REAL ESTATE BROKERS' BOARD HIT BY JUDGE

Madison (AP)—Wisconsin Real Estate Brokers' board was criticized today as a "rubber stamp for the secretaries of the board" in an opinion issued by Circuit Judge A. C. Hoppmann.

The opinion ordered that Edmund L. Roncke, Milwaukee, either receive a broker's license, or that a hearing be held by the board to consider licensing. The case came to court on a writ of certiorari after Roncke, who held license in 1927, 1928, and 1929, had been denied a new certificate.

According to the opinion, complaints had been received against Roncke, and a hearing was held at which no member of the board was present. It said testimony taken in shorthand was not transcribed or read before Roncke was refused his license. The refusal was on advice of an assistant secretary.

Members of the state board are E. H. Grootemaat, Milwaukee; W. E. Webster, Hudson, and A. T. Euhling, Madison.

The solicitor said more than $6,000,000 of the net investment was "watered."

His statement was made during an argument against the application of the Clarion company for an injunction to dismiss the power commission's disallowance of more than $6,000,000 from the company's reported net investment of $11,032,316.

FORCE CAUGHT IN HUGE TRAP BY RED ARMY

Chinese President Takes Command and Renews Intensive Campaign

Hankow, China (AP)—Trapped between the towns of Kwangshui and Hwangnan, less than 100 miles north of this important center, nearly 20,000 provincial troops have been massacred by a like number of bandit reds, reports from northern Hupch province said.

The loss yesterday was the heaviest suffered by the government since the inauguration of its campaign against banditry soon after the end of the recent civil war.

Chiang Kai-shek, generalissimo and president of the Chinese republic, today has taken command of the drive against Communism throughout north central China. However, this seemed not to have deterred the hundreds of bands of roving reds, for they continued attacks against shipping on the upper Yangtze river with undiminished vigor.

American, French, British, Japanese and Chinese vessels suffered. A Chinese seaman on a Japanese cargo carrier was the only fatally reported yesterday, although several ships were badly damaged by gunfire from communist shore batteries.

President Chiang Kai-shek declared the government would send 300,000 troops, 20 gunboats and 30 airplanes against outlaws in the upper Yangtze valley, if necessary.

The president-generalissimo yesterday again brought into play the famed Nanking "silver bullet." He announced that "those who surrender, bringing with them arms and ammunition from the enemy, will receive a reward and pardon, while those responsible for the capture, dead or alive, of any Communist leader, will be richly rewarded."

HOLD NEW SUSPECT IN MARIOTT CASE

Nebraska Farmer Arrested—Denies Charges and Agrees to Extradition

Greeley, Colo. (AP)—The puzzling disappearance of Miss Enid Marriott, 28-year-old Wiggins, Colo., school teacher, today again occupied attention of authorities who held Melvin G. McClanahan, 48, Mitchell, Neb., farmer, in jail here in connection with the case.

He was arrested at Scotts Bluff Neb., Saturday night by Sheriff R. A. Johnston of Fort Morgan and two deputies. The warrant charging abduction of Miss Marriott to Scotts Bluff, The Nebraska farmer denies knowledge of the case and waived extradition. He was brought to Greeley yesterday.

Sheriff Johnston said he would take McClanahan to Fort Morgan today for questioning. He declined to discuss either the warrant or arrest of McClanahan, except to say he had received a letter two weeks ago which intimated the Nebraska man might have knowledge of the teacher's disappearance.

All efforts to locate Miss Marriott have been unavailing. She has not been seen since the night of Nov. 16, when she alighted from a Denver train at Wiggins.

A hat box identified as the teacher's and containing some of her personal effects was found several days ago on the bank of an irrigation ditch near Fort Morgan. This strengthened the theory held by some officers that she had been slain and her body concealed.

$68,552,000 Requested In Interior Department Bill

Washington (AP)—Driven at high speed by the Republican leaders, the house legislative machinery took up today the annual interior department supply bill providing $68,552,000 for the fiscal year 1932.

The bill was reported by the house appropriations committee, carrying $5,640,000 more than the department obtained for the current year, but $340,700 less than recommended in the budget.

The largest single outlay was $15,000,000 for construction on the 165,000,000 dam on the Colorado river, bringing the total thus far allowed to $25,660,000.

To permit the Indian affairs bureau to carry on its increased health, care, educational and industrial training work, the bill set aside $42,000, an increase of $2,060,000 over this year. An additional $2,275,000 was appropriated from funds.

Lindsey Thrown Out Of Cathedral And Arrested As He Interrupts Prayer

New York (AP)—Former Judge Ben B. Lindsey of Denver, who was ejected from the cathedral of St. John the Divine yesterday after he had interrupted Bishop William T. Manning, appeared in west side court today and obtained a continuance until Dec. 12 of a charge of disorderly conduct.

He pleaded not guilty and told Magistrate Dreyer he had several speaking engagements which would take him out of the city between now and Dec. 12.

Counsel for Lindsey, who was arrested after he tried to reply to the bishop's attack on his companionate marriage theories, said he would raise the question whether a man has a right to speak out in church under sufficient provocation.

New York (AP)—Ejected from the Episcopal cathedral of St. John the Divine and arrested after he interrupted Bishop William T. Manning, during prayer, Ben B. Lindsey had to appear in court today.

While Bishop Manning was delivering the ascription yesterday at the close of a sermon in which he denounced Lindsey's stand on companionate marriage, Lindsey hopped on to the reporters' table in front of the pulpit and demanded a chance to be heard.

"Bishop Manning," he cried, "you have falsely represented me. It is not a house of justice if it is not a house of God, and in justice I ask for five minutes to answer your unfair attack."

The congregation was thrown into turmoil. Two ushers pulled Lindsey from the pulpit.

FIND 11 SKELETONS IN GRAVE ON OLD FRONTIER

Omaha, Neb. (AP)—The rude frontier grave which surrounded 11 skeletons to the shovels of two farm workers yesterday near Folsom, Ia., still holds the secret of their identity and how they came to die.

Alfred Jorgensen and one of his hands, Sam Godfrey, struck the burial place while digging a crow trap on a hilltop. It was about six feet deep. Several of the skulls were crushed or broken, lending credence to an Indian attack. The bodies lay one across another, indicating they were thrown hastily into the pit.

Comer Raynor of Mills-co, said he was almost positive the bones were those of whites instead of Indians. No aboriginal relics were found. Dr. C. W. N. Poynter, dean of the anatomy department of the medical college of the University of Nebraska, after examining one of the skulls said it had no characteristics of the plains Indian. He withheld a definite statement pending the examination of the jaw and teeth.

14 PERISH AS BLAST TEARS CRAFT APART

Vessel Known to Have Been Loaded With Powder and Ammunition

SOUGHT HUGE TREASURE

Was Attempting to Salvage $5,000,000 in Gold from Treasure Ship

Lorient, France (AP)—The Italian salvage vessel Artiglio, which was trying to recover $5,000,000 in gold bullion from the sunken liner Egypt exploded and sank off the island of Houat with the loss of 14 men, port officials here announced today.

The explosion took place yesterday afternoon, but first word of it reached here today through a signal station of Hoedic island, not far from Houat.

Two of the men who were killed were found in full diving equipment among the wreckage of the vessel. Seven other men who were injured were taken to a hospital at Belle Isle.

The signal man on Hoedic island said he heard a violent explosion about five miles to the southwest of his station, and at the same time saw water spout a thousand feet into the air. Then there was a great billow of smoke and he saw chunks of wreckage dropping into the sea.

Another Italian salvage ship, the Rostro, which was in the vicinity, scurried over to the spot where the Artiglio had been and picked up the seven members of the crew who were injured.

The signal man on Hoedic island said he heard a violent explosion about five miles to the southwest of his station, and at the same time saw water spout a thousand feet into the air. Then there was a great billow of smoke and he saw chunks of wreckage dropping into the sea.

Another Italian salvage ship, the Rostro, which was in the vicinity, scurried over to the spot where the Artiglio had been and picked up the seven members of the crew who were injured.

CAUSE STILL UNKNOWN Details of the disaster were not available immediately, but the Artiglio was known to have been heavily loaded with powder and ammunition.

The Artiglio had temporarily abandoned work on the wreck of the Egypt, which had been shifted by ocean currents after the first salvage operations.

At the time of the explosion she was sending divers down to examine the hulks of two munition ships sunk during the war. It was thought possible that she had shoved her nose into the wreckage of one of these, the La Florencia, and in some way touched off her own cargo of explosives.

The two derelicts had been condemned as menaces to navigation, and the Artiglio and the Rostro had been ordered to break them up. A warship had taken a group of French marine ministry officials out to the vicinity while the operations were under way.

RECOVERED KEY TO GOLD While divers from the Artiglio had not succeeded in recovering the fortune in bullion under the Egypt's hatch, they did bring up a key to the bullion room. They had planned to go back and open the rusted locks when adverse ocean currents interrupted the work.

One of the first objects recovered from the wreck was a sack of diplomatic mail from the British foreign office. This was in a safe in the purser's office.

Many lives were lost when the Egypt steaming through a heavy fog, ran on the rocks and went down in May, 1922. The Artiglio, veteran of many a salvage operation, was pressed into service nearly seven years later to recover the bullion.

It was not long before her divers found the keys to the bullion room and brought up the safe which contained the diplomatic mail. The safe was opened on the Artiglio's decks while several hundred persons looked on.

All this was last September. The operations were interrupted by stormy weather. The Artiglio was blown from the moorings and had to run for cover. Before the weather cleared and the job could be taken up again, ocean currents had shifted the position of the wreck.

Soviet Commutes Eight Sentences For "Conspiracy"

FIVE ESCAPE FIRING SQUAD; GO TO PRISON

Must Serve 10-year Terms—Three Others Get 8-year Sentences

Moscow.—(AP)—The Soviet central executive committee today commuted the death sentences of five engineers convicted of a plot to overthrow the Soviet regime to ten years imprisonment.

Sentences of ten years imprisonment passed on the remaining three defendants in the unusually dramatic trial which was broadcast from one end of the Soviet union to the other were reduced to eight years.

The five whose death sentences were commuted are:

Leonid Amata, 42, former professor of the Moscow technical institute and director of the heat and power institute; leader of the movement.

Victor Larichev, 43, former head of the fuel department of the state planning commission, said to be next in command to Ramsin.

Nikolai Charnikov, 62, professor in various technical institutes, and president of the technical council of the supreme economic council.

Ivan Kalinikov, 56, former official of the state planning commission and professor in the military aerial academy.

Alexander Redotov, 67, oldest of the conspirators, professor in various institutes and chairman of the scientific research textile institute.

Those sentenced to imprisonment for ten years, but whose terms were commuted to eight years are:

Vladimir Ochkin, 30, youngest of the group, secretary to Ramsin in the heat and power institute and manager of the research section of the supreme economic council.

Sergei Kuprianov, 52, director of the technical section of the supreme economic council.

Xenophon Shtin, 52, engineer of the all-union textile syndicate.

The prisoners heard the verdict and sentences impassively. Ramsin gripped the desk in front of him and listened intently until he heard his name and then seemed to take no further notice of the proceedings.

Further stock with downcast eyes, Charnikov gulped two glasses of water after requesting an attendant to bring them.

The courtroom, former hall of the old union club or house of columns, was filled with spectators, all of whom had waited from 6 o'clock p. m. until after 11 o'clock for the judges to appear.

As Judge Vishinsky read the verdict and the sentences there was a roar of applause. Outside 10,000 others, unable to get in, listened at microphones and likewise applauded.

Nearly an hour was consumed as Judge Vishinsky read the verdict, which he had written out in long hand.

CONTENTS OF VERDICT

The verdict found that the defendants had sponsored military intervention in Russia; backed by capitalists and military circles of France and the Torgrom (Russian emigre organization in Paris) and the industrial party of Russia. In another place it was charged that "the anti-Soviet engineers were among the most hostile and most violent leaders of counter-revolutionary organizations."

Mention also was made of the intervention of a foreign fleet, which may have referred to assertions made by the defendants during the trial that England had aided the conspiracy.

The trial began Nov. 25. All eight defendants entered pleas of guilty before microphones which carried their voices to the farthest parts of Russia. Such names as Raymond Poincare, Aristide Briand, "Colonel Lawrence and Lord Churchill" of

DORAN MAKES LAST REPORT AS DRY CHIEF

Jail Sentences Total More Than 14,000 in Year, Mellon Told

Washington.—(AP)—Jail sentences aggregating more than 14,000 years, imposed during the last fiscal year on violators of the Volstead act under the Jones "five and ten" and other laws, were reported today by Dr. James M. Doran.

Giving a final accounting of his stewardship over the prohibition bureau before it was divided by congress into three parts, Dr. Doran, now commissioner of industrial alcohol, reported to Secretary Mellon a total of 68,173 arrests by dry agents and 82,408 jail sentences out of 64,085 convictions up to last July.

Dr. Doran made his annual report the vehicle for denying that considerable corruption had existed within the ranks of prohibition workers. He said 567 cases had been investigated by a special inspection division and all but one case closed.

"In a very large proportion of the cases," he asserted, "the charges were either absolutely disproved or dropped for lack of evidence. Prohibition employees were found very frequently to be victims of false allegations made by violators for the purpose of discrediting the agents—government witnesses against them."

"There is no doubt that the number and seriousness of the provable charges against prohibition employees have been greatly reduced."

How the federal government sanctioned the distilling of approximately 2,000,000 gallons of the first whiskey legally manufactured in this country since 1922 also was told.

MEDICINAL WHISKY

The decision to begin once more the distilling of medicinal whiskey, he said, was reached after it was discovered there was on hand last January only a five year supply. Under federal law these spirits must be aged four years. Permits were issued for 2,104,000 gallons of whiskey and 50,000 gallons each of rum and brandy, raising the total federal supply to 16,800,000 gallons of spirits.

England, were mentioned by the engineers as co-conspirators.

Each pleaded for his life, offering to spend the remainder of his days in contrition and exhaustive labor on behalf of the proletariat. Charges were made in the foreign press that the trial was a frame-up and the confessions coerced, but the foreign observer found nothing to indicate that the trial was not bonafide in all its aspects.

TAKES STAND IN SHEPARD HEARING

Medical Officer Says Victim's Eyes Might Have Reacted to Poison

Kansas City, Kas.—(AP)—Major J. C. Dye, army medical officer, testified in federal court here today at the murder trial of Major Charles A. Shepard, that the condition of Mrs. Zenana Shepard's eyes prior to her death might have been caused by a slow-acting poison, or by the use of alcoholic beverages.

Called as a government witness, Major Dye, now stationed at Fort Warren, Wyo., said he had been summoned to attend Mrs. Shepard May 21, 1929, the day after she was seized with an illness that proved fatal at Fort Riley, Kas., in June, 1929.

Major Dye said he did not recall whether Major Shepard or Major Paul R. Hawley, formerly of Fort Riley, called him to Mrs. Shepard's bedside. Major Hawley also attended Mrs. Shepard.

Examination of Mrs. Shepard's eyes showed a condition, Major Dye testified to direct questioning, that could have resulted from absorption of the slow-acting poison which the prosecution alleges Shepard, a medical officer, administered to his wife in order that he might be free to wed Miss Grace Brandon, stenographer of San Antonio, Texas.

On cross-examination, Major Dye stated that the use of alcohol could have affected Mrs. Shepard's eyes. This was brought out to lend support to the defense assertion that Mrs. Shepard drank excessively and was morose.

21,168,000 gallons of wine, together with a considerable quantity of rum, brandy, and about 10,000,000 gallons of industrial alcohol.

Dr. Doran said his agents had seized 8,933 automobiles valued at $3,290,830. In addition to the cases resulting in jail sentences in federal courts, and fines totaling $6,873,729, he said, courts either suspended, paroled or probated sentences aggregating 5,805 years.

Reporting for the bureau of narcotics, of which he was then head, Doran said:

"The control of legal importation, manufacture and distribution appears to be reasonably effectual. Smuggling and the subsequent illegal selling of opium, morphine, heroin and cocaine continue to be the principal enforcement problem."

The party arrived in San Diego aboard the U. S. S. Aaron Ward. They are L. Sayers, master of the ill-fated yacht Eola; Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Frisbee; their three daughters, Lucille, 19; Hazel, 10; and Mrs. Mary Johnson; Verlie Johnson, 3; J. M. McFate, and H. R. Tiffany. The Frisbees live in Los Angeles, as do their daughter, Mrs. Johnson and her child. McFate is a San Diego resident and Tiffany lives in Birmingham, N. Y.

Mrs. Frisbee, Lucille Frisbee, Mrs. Johnson and the Johnson child were aboard the yacht, anchored off Guadalupe island the night of Nov. 30, when a sudden gale began whipping up heavy seas and the Eola's anchors failed to hold. The others were ashore.

Captain Sayers awoke the party and after buckling life preservers on the women and children, boarded a skiff with them, abandoning the craft.

Lashed by the terrific gale, the little skiff was tossed about and carried seaward half a mile beyond the yacht, before progress was made shoreward, the survivors said. Eventually the yacht was submerged.

The drone of airplane motors was heard over the island Saturday, as naval planes engaged in a search for the missing San Pedro fighting boat Fidelity passed overhead.avid signaling attracted the pilots who notified government officials here and the U. S. S. Langley and the destroyer Aaron Ward were dispatched to barren Guadalupe.

The Fidelity and its 11-man crew was not found; it has been missing since Nov. 21.

PADEREWSKI HAS AMERICAN HOME IN CALIFORNIA

Famous Pianist Maintains 2,600 Acre Ranch at Paso Robles

The American home of Paderewski, who will play at Lawrence Memorial chapel Tuesday evening, is in California, where the famous pianist has a thriving ranch at Paso Robles. Each season he insists upon having three weeks set aside, entirely free from concerts, so that he may enjoy the spring there.

The ranch is about 2,600 acres in size and under cultivation mainly to almonds, prunes, grapes and walnuts. Temporary boredom was responsible for Paderewski buying what is now his most treasured possession.

At the advice of a friend he had gone to Paso Robles to rest in the midst of one of his tours. He had no sooner settled down in the local hotel for what he intended to be a few days stay when a terrible storm ensued, causing all railroad service to be interrupted for more than a week.

After a few days Paderewski became desperately bored. Like all true Poles, he has a passion for land, and he sought diversion in buying himself a ranch.

For many years Paderewski's official home has been in Morges, Switzerland, on the shore of Lake Geneva. His chalet, known as Riord Bosson, sits on a ridge from which can be seen the waters of the lake and the magnificent panorama of the Savoyan Alps. Half of the grounds and woodland—fir, beeches, and poplars. In one corner is the sheepfold containing the descendants of the celebrated sheep given to Paderewski by the President of Argentina in 1911. In another corner are fruit trees, apple, peach and pear, and in another section Madame Paderewski's remarkable chickens.

SCHNEIDER SEEKS FEDERAL AID FOR ONEIDA INDIANS

Three Hundred Red Men Face Hard Winter, Survey Indicates

BY RUBY A. BLACK
Post-Crescent Wash. Corrs.

Washington—Federal aid for destitute Oneida Indians in Brown and Outagamie counties is being sought by Rep. George J. Schneider of Appleton.

Information from the town of Oneida and from Outagamie county indicates that there are some three hundred Oneida men, women and children who have not enough to provide adequate food, shelter and clothing this winter. The lands formerly belonging to the Oneida tribe were allotted to the individual members of the tribe by the Bureau of Indian Affairs and much of their property has since been dissipated. As the lands were allotted and the Oneidas discharged as wards of the government, no aid of any kind has gone to them from the federal government.

Pat M. Garvey, chairman of the Oneida town board, has written Rep. Schneider that if the federal govern-

ELKS PAY TRIBUTE TO 5 MEMBERS WHO DIED IN PAST YEAR

Death Is Only Beginning of Life, Rev. L. D. Utts Points Out

"Living or dead, an Elk is never forgotten, never forsaken. "Morning and noon may pass him by."

"But ere the shadows of midnight shall fall,"

"The golden chimes will be pealing forth their friendly message. "To our absent brothers."

With this thought in mind, Appleton Lodge No. 337, B. P. O. Elks, Sunday paid tribute at the annual Memorial Day services to five members of the order who died during the past year.

The deceased members thus honored were: Albert V. Priest, David Bretschneider, Albin G. Schroeder, Matt Schmidt, and E. A. Morse.

The Memorial sermon was delivered by the Rev. L. D. Utts, rector of All Saints Episcopal church.

Stressing the importance of the "hull country" in one's life, the Rev. Utts explained that he was referring to the influences which cause indifference to the dead level of monotony into aspiration and desire.

It would be difficult, he pointed out, to conceive of a life that would be like an unchanging and uniform plain. There are two or three superlative heights that ought to find a place in everybody's hull country.

He referred to them as Mt. Sinai, Mt. Calvary, and Mt. Olivet. "None of the hills are intended to have the other's name," Mt. Sinai is the proclamation of law; Mt. Calvary is the proclamation of love in which that law is fulfilled; it is impossible to explain the difference between them, yet we know that He who gave the law on Mt. Sinai gave his life on Mt. Calvary. On Mt. Olivet God speaks in words; on Calvary God speaks in a stupendous act. Mt. Olivet blazes with the light of immortality and reveals that death is not the end, but a thoroughfare, on which life is just beginning.

"And so, in order that we may refresh our minds in the accomplishments of our brethren, we must lift our eyes unto the hills. If we want our name inscribed on the tablets of memory, we must carry on the work to greater heights. To know the Lord of Mt. Olivet is to be immune from the final dominion of death."

OPPOSES CHANGE IN FARM MARKET ACT

Bureau Federation Head Says Troubles Not Due to Over-production

Boston — (AP) — Revision of the Agricultural Marketing act was opposed today by Sam H. Thompson, president of the American Farm Bureau federation, in his address opening the annual three-day convention of the organization.

"I believe there is in the act all the authority to do the fundamental things that we want done. The time is not here for discussion of amendments," he said.

Attending the convention were farm leaders from every agricultural section of the country, seeking through discussions of their mutual problems and their methods of solution. These include rural credits, agricultural taxation, acreage reduction, sub-marginal lands and transportation.

In his opening address, President Thompson challenged what he said was a prevailing opinion that agriculture's troubles were due to over-production. The cause, he said, lay in faulty distribution. There was a genuine market for the goods that could be sold with adequate return to the producer, he admitted, but added:

"In terms of human need there is no surplus. In our great cities today are hundreds of thousands of men and women, walking the streets, idle. Factory doors are dark and multitudes are hungry. There are today, too, millions of farm people in need of every product of these factories and there are millions of dollars worth of farm products rotting in the ground because there is no market for that produce. The fault cannot be explained by the word 'surplus.' On the one hand are millions needing food and without the wherewithal to get it—on the other hand millions desiring the products of the hungry city workers."

CHARGE CAR DIDN'T HAVE PROPER LIGHTS

Ernest Maynard, 115 E. Spring-st., was arraigned in municipal court before Judge Theodore Berg Monday morning on charges of operating a car without proper headlights. He pleaded not guilty and hearing was set for Tuesday.

ELECTRIC COMPANY TO REPAIR TRAFFIC LIGHTS

Twelve-Plane Fleet to Hop Atlantic from Italy

On the most ambitious group flight yet attempted by any nation, 12 Italian military seaplanes will hop off from Orbetello, near Rome, about Dec. 15, for a flight to South America, terminating at Rio de Janeiro. This map shows the route and the points at which stops will be made. Above is Major Umberto Maddalena, Italy's famous ace, who will lead the group; below, General Italo Balbo, Italy's minister of aeronautics, who will pilot one of the planes. The flyers plan to travel by easy stages and make the 1800-mile hop across the South Atlantic—between Bolama, capital of Portuguese Guinea, and Porto Natal, Brazil—about Jan. 1 in order to get the advantage of the full moon.

PEACE RULES AFTER SOCIAL STRIFE AT CAPITAL OF NATION

Washington — (AP) — Far from resentment on the question of social precedence, Mrs. Gann and Mrs. Longworth called each other by first names when they met at the last White House reception.

"Hell, Dolly," was the way Mrs. Longworth greeted Vice President Curtis' sister and official hostess. Mrs. Gann replied "Hello Alice" to the wife of Speaker Longworth.

Friends of both, also attending the reception, were Mrs. Hoover, Mrs. Curtis, and the diplomatic corps Thursday night, watching the two clasp hands and concluded any differences there might have been between them were no more.

IMPERSONATOR OFFERS PLAYS TO STUDENTS

Maude Sheerer, noted impersonator, entertained Lawrence college students with two short plays during the student convocation Monday morning. The first play, "Trifles," was an amusing little comedy. The action takes place on a New England farm. A passing farmer stops for a friendly visit and finds the wife sitting before the fire in a daze and her husband dead in an upstairs room, choked to death with a rope.

No apparent motive can be found but the woman is held on suspicion. Her husband was a sullen, brutish man who made her life very unhappy. Two neighbors came to the house to get some sewing to occupy her time while in jail and in her sewing box find her pet canary with its neck wrung. Knowing that her husband would have killed the bird, the woman hys it and the law fails to find a motive with which to convict the woman.

The second play is a comedy taken from the story "Old Man Adam and his Children," written by Bradford, and deals with the creation of the earth. The story, a negro spiritual is told in fairy tale fashion, showing a group of angels having a fish fry. They need more space for the festivities so God drags the firmament and makes mountains and valleys. Seeing the beauty of the newly revealed firmament he goes down to for a week to finish the job of making a new land and to create man. Both plays were very well presented, the individual characters being very cleverly portrayed.

SENT TO PRISON WHEN HE CONFESSES SLAYING

Waukesha — (AP) — Pleading guilty to second degree murder, Charles Jones, 27, Waukesha, was sentenced to from 14 to 25 years in state prison today. He was involved in the fatal shooting of Max Kramer Sept. 20 during a holdup of Kramer's hotel at Pewaukee.

Howard Mickle, 25, also of Waukesha, who signed a confession that he shot Kramer, pleaded not guilty and selection of a jury to try him was started.

Two other members of the quartet that shot Kramer while trying to rob his place of slot machines, have not been captured.

ORGANIZE VIGILANTE SYSTEM FOR POLK-CO

Amery — (AP) — Organization of a Polk-co vigilante system, using former service men as the personnel, was going forward here today under direction of the sheriff's office. ## 7-Months-Old "Prisoner" Harbored In County Jail

Sheriff John Lappen believes that he is now harboring in the county jail the youngest "prisoner" which has ever been kept in that institution.

This prisoner is Charles "Chubby" Johnston, seven months old. His mother, Mrs. Lila Johnston, is confined to the jail awaiting preliminary hearing on charges of receiving, concealing and aiding in the concealment of stolen property. The hearing is set for Dec. 13 and she failed to furnish bonds of $1,000. Her arrest is in connection with the burglary at the Fashion Shop, W. College-ave, in October.

"Chubby" takes his confinement in a spirit of fun. In fact, he is quite used to jails. He was taken to jail at Kenosha early in November when police arrested his father and mother, Mrs. Viola Bandy and Richard Bandy and Jerome Eggert.

They were taken into custody when officials raided a cottage near that city and found merchandise valued at more than $20,000. Part of this loot was identified as coming from the Fashion Shop.

With the arrest of his parents, "Chubby" had no recourse but to go to jail also. He registered a protest as follows:

"Gurgle, Urk, urk, urk! Goo, goo, ga, goo!"

Chubby is just what his name implies, a round bundle of baby who has already won the hearts of the prisoners at the jail, the sheriff and Mrs. Lappen, and all the county officials. He has fat cheeks, big hazel-brown eyes, rosy cheeks and a penchant for getting into trouble if he's left on the floor alone for more than a minute.

He can't walk but he has a peculiar style all his own for getting around. It couldn't be exactly termed a crawl because it isn't. But he manages to get where he wants to go just the same.

His favorite playthings are a bunch of clothespins and a deck of cards. He can build the most weird looking structures with the clothespins and then has a fine time swatting them in all directions, only to pick them up and start all over again. Monday morning he was playing "solitaire" on the floor in the large jail corridor with a deck of cards and he was so fascinated by the colors and pictures and designs that he couldn't be induced to leave the sport.

When the inquiring reporter asked him how he liked life in the jail, he said:

"Glaay, Gurgle, Gook, awk!"

While it was impossible to find an interpreter to understand this language or a translator who could figure out what it meant, the reporter believed, from the jocular way in which he expressed himself, that he meant:

"Fine."

Sheriff Lappen says he thinks he will adopt the boy. But so did all the rest of the county officials. Chubby, however, says he likes his mother best and believes he will stick right with her.

HALF OF GERMAN TOWN DEPENDENT ON DOLES

Geestland, Germany — (AP) — The serious aspect of Germany's unemployment was made vivid here when the mayor revealed that, one out of every two inhabitants of this Prussian town is dependent either directly or indirectly upon public funds.

One third of the population is listed as unemployed and these idle men and women have enough dependents to bring the total number living off doles or other forms of relief to half the population.

When the inquiring reporter asked him how he liked life in the jail, he said:

"Glaay, Gurgle, Gook, awk!"

SASSMAN RETAINED AS PRESIDENT OF HOLSTEIN GROUP

Officers of County Association Re-elected at Annual Meeting

BY W. F. WINSEY

Black Creek—Instead of taking away the butter from the poor man's table by oleomargarine control laws, you are taking away the rich's man graft, declared W. B. Barney, legislative and dairy specialist of the extension service of the Holstein-Friesian association of America at the annual meeting of the Outagamie Holstein breeders' association in the Black Creek village auditorium Saturday.

Other speakers were Rudolph Jr. Schaefer, noted Holstein breeder of Outagamie-co; and Gus Sell, county agent.

Officers re-elected to succeed themselves were: Edward Sassman, Black Creek, president; Nick Palzer, Appleton, vice president; and Edward O. Mueller, Appleton, secretary-treasurer. Members of the executive committee re-elected to succeed themselves were: Walter Wiekert, Appleton; John Palzer, Appleton; Fred Kaphingst, Appleton; Edward Zeh, Appleton; R. J. Schaefer, Appleton; and Fred Melchert, Seymour.

The wives and daughters of the Holstein breeder prepared basket lunches and served the lunches cafeteria style at noon.

A Seymour orchestra with Mrs. Frank Tubbs at the piano, led by Dr. Herman Helms, entertained the breeders. In the orchestra were Gene and Louis Helms, Alvin Eick, Frank Tubbs and Herbert Tubbs.

SCORES ADVERTISING

"Did you ever see this?" inquired Mr. Barney as he held up a circular advertising oleomargarine, headed with a purebred Holstein cow with a high production record. "In a former circular of the kind. I found the picture of a high producing herd in a yard said to be owned by the oleo manufacturer and among the stock shows of the country. The said in the advertisement that the owner of these cows was churned with oleo to produce a most nutritious food. Analysis has proved that oleo shows only the slightest trace of cows' milk."

Mr. Barney discussed false, misleading advertising and drew a law that prohibits the practice of using the pictures of dairy cows in advertising oleomargarine. Similar laws have since been passed by the legislatures of 27 states, he pointed out.

"When the south was selling cotton seed oil to the oleo manufacturers as one of the ingredients of oleo, the people of that section of the country did not object to the housewife turning from the use of good wholesome dairy butter to oleo, but the oleo manufacturers change from cotton seed oil to coconut oil, they became convinced that butter was the most nutritious and palatable food."

"Charles Hill of the department of agriculture and markets is now considering the passage of a good license or tax law on oleomargarine. In some states, the manufacturers of oleo are taxed $500 and the jobbers $300, and the restaurants also are taxed. In Utah the tax is 5 cents per pound."

"A company manufacturing a substitute for oleo for cooking and giving the product the color of butter will be subject to a tax of 10 cents per pound on the product after next July. In reply to insistent questions about the reasons for the yellow color of the cooking compound, a representative of the manufacturers said in an examination that the yellow color was transferred to cakes and other foods."

NEED BETTER COWS

"When butterfat is worth 60 cents a pound, any bull may be good enough to head a herd but when it is 40 cents a pound the dairyman must be careful about the kind of a bull he buys, and the butterfat production of each cow in his herd," said County Agent Gus Sell. "It takes 50 per cent better cows than a year ago to produce the same income on a farm."

"Better and better Holsteins and better ways of showing buyers what our Holsteins are doing should be our rule in these depressed times. The narrower the margin of profit in dairying, the closer dairymen must be to their jobs. Now as always the best cows are making the highest profits for their owners."

To increase to sale of bulls, Mr. Sell suggested that the Holstein breeders should do more testing to discover their 300 and 400 pound cows. The offspring of such cows will be more and more popular as time goes on. Records of such cows and lists of bulls from such dams in his office would be of great assistance to the county agent in directing outside buyers to the kind of bull desired.

"Through cow testing and good management, Frank Jones, Seymour, increased the production of his Holstein herd from a last average 34 pounds of butterfat to last average 37 pounds this year or over 30 pounds per cow," declared Sell. "We wish we had hundreds of herds in Outagamie county as productive as that of Mr. Tubbs."

APPLETON YOUTH TAKES 8 PRIZES AT POULTRY SHOW

As in the past two years, most of the annual show of the Fox River Valley Poultry and Pet Stock association at Armory G last week were won by Leo Nickasch, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Nickasch. The youngster's Swiss Moudanes, which were in competition with prize winners at other shows in the state, took three first places, three seconds and two thirds. Nickasch took first honors with a perfect pair of white Swiss Moudanes, which he recently acquired from a pigeon fancier in Vermont. Both cock and hen and the hen were classed as the best exhibits at the local show.

YOUNG REDS GO TO SCHOOL SINGING; THEY'RE ALL HAPPY

They Don't Know What Word "Rich" Means and They Don't Care

BY VICTOR EUBANK

Batum, Adzharia Republic, U. S. S. R. — (P) — Communist youth seems to be decidedly in the ascendency in Batum, capital of the Adzharia.

Batum is an oil center, with two pipe lines from Baku and a fine harbor on the Black sea taking care of huge exports.

The day I arrived here there was an immense parade of what appeared to be thousands of children. They were clean, well dressed and apparently happy.

They carried red flags and numerous banners on which were painted their slogans. Bands of boys and girls filled the air with music. They sang the Internationale, and other patriotic songs.

"What is it?" I inquired. "Have all the schools burned down?"

"Nothing of the sort," replied a Batum booster. "These children are all young communists who are celebrating the opening of the winter school term."

Later two of these youths volunteered to show the foreigners the local sights. They were Young Pioneers, not yet old enough to join the Young Communists organization.

The Pioneers are something like the Boy Scouts and get their Marxist training early. One of their tenets is to be polite and helpful to strangers. The tv Pioneers positively refused the usual thank-offerings customary in other countries.

"What are you going to be when you grow up?" one of the boys was asked.

"I hope to be an engineer," was the answer of the 10-year-old.

"Do you want to become rich?" "Rich?" repeated the Young Pioneer, obviously mystified. "What does rich mean?"

The word "rich" is not in the Soviet vocabulary.

Near Batum the government has established a large experimental tropical farm whereon it is trying to raise oranges, lemons and other citrus fruit.

The biggest venture is a tea plantation where already some 35,000 acres are under cultivation. At the end of the five-year plan it is expected that 100,000 acres will be planted in tea. The soviet government thereby hopes to do away with its great tea imports.

There are as many mosques as churches in Batum, although a percentage of both is being eliminated by the soviet campaign against religion. The nationalists here are more mixed than in any other city of the union. They are chiefly Mohammedan Georgians (Adzharians), Armenians, Greeks, Turks, Russians and Jews.

The Adzharian language is taught in the schools, as well as Russian. The soviets granted the Adzharians a separate republic after Georgia was taken from the Mensheviks in 1921.

CLINTONVILLE MAN STATE "Y" DIRECTOR

Two new directors of the state Y. M. C. A. were named last week at a meeting in Milwaukee. W. A. Olen, Clintonville, is one of the new directors and the other is J. A. Craig of Janesville. R. P. Perry, Reedsburg, was appointed to the board of trustees.

John E. Hoff, Milwaukee, was named director of Phantom Lake camp for the 1931 season. The state department also operates a camp at Boulder Junction. The Phantom Lake camp is at Mukwanago.

TWO CARS DAMAGED IN COLLISION ON AVENUE

A car driven by Oscar Helms, 1353 W. College-ave was considerably damaged at noon Saturday near the corner of Summit-st and College-ave in a collision with a car driven by Louis Luebke, city electrician. Luebke, who was following the Helms car west on College-ave, assumed that Helms was turning the Summit corner when he slowed up. Instead Mr. Helms merely picked up a passenger and kept going west on the avenue. Because of the slippery pavement Mr. Luebke was unable to stop in time to avoid the accident.

Legionnaires Prepare To Greet Count Von Luckner

Oney Johnston post will meet tonight to make plans for welcoming Count Felix von Luckner, the only "honest-to-gosh pirate" to sail the seas in the last 100 years. He is coming to Appleton Wednesday to talk at Lawrence Memorial chapel. Von Luckner appeared here about a year ago and his address was so well received that the legion jumped at a chance to bring him back here again.

"Von Luckner this month is celebrating the anniversary of the start of the cruise as a German sea raider which made him famous throughout the world as a master sailor and 'pirate' and as one man who fought in the World war and never took a life."

But while Von Luckner can tell much about his experiences with the "Seeadler," the vessel on which he ran the Allied blockade in the North Sea, west north toward Iceland and Greenland and then slid down the Atlantic coast of the United States around South America and then across the Pacific to the South seas where he preyed an allied ship until wrecked on a coral reef, he also has other experiences to tell.

CEREAL MAKERS LOOK FOR IMPROVED TRADE

Battle Creek, Mich. — (AP) — W. K. Kellogg, chairman of the board of the Kellogg company, cereal manufacturers, said today that his company's confidence in the improvement in business in 1931 has resulted in plans for the largest advertising program in its history.

Kellogg said the company had done the biggest business in its history during the past year and that as a result of this experience the enlarged 1931 program had been adopted.

"Aside from our individual experience, however, we do not believe any close observer of the undercurrents of business trends can deny that business generally soon will enter upon a gradual but certain improvement," he said.

MANY STATES ARE ABOLISHING FIXED UPPER SPEED LIMIT

Highway Commission Points Out Advantages of Elimination

Madison — "The tendency of legislation in most states is more and more to do away with a fixed upper speed limit on highways in the rural districts," said the highway commission today. This is in spite of the opinion of most police officials that an upper speed limit is a necessity. They contend that it is practically impossible to convict on the charge of reckless driving regardless of how reckless the driving actually may be. They contend that if speed in excess of 45 miles per hour, were made prima facie evidence of reckless driving, then they could make the charge stick in cases where the driving actually is reckless.

"There is a wide misapprehension on the part of the public with regard to the effect of the removal of the upper speed limit," continues the statement. "Many people believe that it becomes lawful to run with the capacity of the engine as the only limit, but this is not the case. The traffic code adopted in 1929 contains two basic requirements which must be met regardless of the speed. The first is that a vehicle may not be operated carelessly or heedlessly, in willful or wanton disregard of the safety of others, or without due regard to the traffic, surface, width of highway, and any other condition of any nature then existing. The second is that in traversing intersections, where the operator does not have a clear view of approaching traffic, the speed shall not be greater than that which will permit the operator to stop within one-half the distance within which he is able to see approaching traffic. The latter is a good rule to follow everywhere and at all times even though the law refers only to intersections.

"Railroad train operation is under fixed orders which take into effect every train on the rails and is designated to protect every train at all times. Such a system is impossible on a highway. The only way by which a driver can learn about the presence of other vehicles or other danger is through the use of his senses, hearing and vision. Yet many drivers persist in driving straight ahead at high speeds, even if they do not see where they are going and cannot know that the road is safe. Eternal vigilance on the part of every driver is the prime requisite to safety. The least distraction is apt to cause disaster if it occurs at high speeds. Unless you can see clearly that it is absolutely safe to go ahead, slow down and stop, if necessary, to assure yourself that the way is clear. Take no chances and stay alive.

WHEN PRESIDENTS CLASH

The senate may refuse to confirm presidential appointments. That is within its jurisdiction. William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, may work against confirmation of presidential appointees. That is within his jurisdiction. But no one is going to dictate to Herbert Hoover whom he shall appoint to cabinet or other positions. That is his jurisdiction.

Had Mr. Green desired to force the president to appoint someone as secretary of labor who did not belong to the federation, he could hardly have followed any better policy to accomplish that purpose than he did. His insistence that the new secretary must come from the federation, coupled with something at least approaching an intimation that he would fight any other appointment, settled the issue against him.

No longer did conciliation mark the president's course. He shot out his answer in a stiff blow, saying: "Mr. Green's enunciation that appointments must come from one organization in fact imposes upon me the duty to maintain the principle of open and equal opportunity and freedom in appointments to public office." The president thereupon appointed Mr. Doak and issued the further statement that he would not "debar any labor man in the United States, whether or not affiliated with the great federation, from the opportunity or the aspiration to attain any office in the land."

As a matter of fact, Mr. Doak belongs to the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen, which is, if we mistake not, an older order than the federation itself, and having advanced himself through his own sturdy efforts in life, coupled with clean and orderly habits of mind, as well as native ability of a high order, it cannot be denied that he comes up to Mr. Green's definition of a secretary of labor as one who "should be a man who understands the American labor movement, its problems and the thought and mind of American labor." To start out earning one's own living in overalls shunting box cars, and at an early age, to be without means or influence except the means one earns and the influence one merits, and to be at 47 years of age a member of the cabinet of the president of the United States, tells whether opportunity is still abroad in the land.

Out of the clash something more than sparks arose, for Mr. Green has learned that there are limitations, as of course there must be, upon his influence, and the American people have learned that the president has that sterling quality known as backbone, and does not court the favor of others for the sake of their influence, but is more interested in preserving and at all times upholding those sound principles of fairness and equality that are an indispensable adjunct in a free government.

WHERE NEWS TRAVELS SLOWLY

Radios, newspapers and movies have made the dissemination of news in this country an extremely rapid and thorough affair. But evidently we still have our blind spots.

At any rate, a very aged Louisiana backwoodsman was taken into federal court at Baton Rouge the other day for distilling whisky, and he confessed that he had never heard of the prohibition law at all. Questioned further, he brought out the fact that he was not even sure the Civil war had ended—although, to be sure, he had heard rumors.

One wonders just what sort of isolated hole-in-the-wall this chap could have inhabited. Some newspaper ought to be able to pick up a few subscribers there.

MOONEY AND BILLINGS

There is not a great deal of comment that may be passed upon the refusal of the supreme court of California to recommend a pardon for Warren K. Billings for the simple reason that about everything that could be said has already been said, and over and over again.

The real issue at stake is often clouded. It is not whether Billings and Mooney are guilty but whether they have had that prime requisite in all free governments, a fair trial, and whether there was produced at that trial a fair amount of evidence to demonstrate their guilt. No one knows whether they are guilty of planting that death dealing bomb for the 1916 parade unless there be found persons who were in their intimate counsels or may have actually seen the deposit of the deadly instrument.

But these men were convicted on the testimony of two witnesses who swore to having recognized them, one of the witnesses apparently an hysterical of little credibility and who recanted his story, but the other a seemingly responsible person who made a deep impression upon all who heard him but has been demonstrated by documentary proof, letters he wrote himself, to have tried to get others whom he knew were a thousand miles away at the time, to also identify these men as the ones who dropped the suitcase. Any man posing as a disinterested witness giving testimony only through his duty of citizenship but clearly proven by his own writings as an active party in the perpetration of fraud upon court and jury, has completely shattered the value of his own testimony and raised a cloud of doubt in connection with the entire prosecution.

Mooney and Billings are suffering not so much because of evidence weighty enough to convict them but because of bad records. They were both men of violence. One had served a term for crime, the other had been identified with various forms of sabotage. Billings conceded that at the time of the explosion he was busy destroying automobile tires and other property because of some alleged labor dispute. That they may have committed other offenses may be of some weight when they are charged with crimes of violence, but it still does not take the place of that essential thing, 'credible evidence to couple them up with the crime of which they stand charged. When the principal witness against them is shown to have been a sub-orner of perjury himself, and that by his own handwriting, it is not complimentary to the processes of the law obtaining in California that nothing is done about it.

There is another lesson, that of the care with which men should guard their reputations, the danger to those who use destructive methods of being accused of still more terrible crimes, for had Mooney and Billings been without the record of violence which trailed them wherever they went they would not only be free today but probably would never have been accused of crime.

HOW JOSHUA DID IT

British archeology has been busy in Palestine, along with the British government, and some of its results are unusually interesting. The latest revelation from these historical scientists concerns the ancient, strongly fortified city of Jericho, whose walls, according to the biblical account, fell down at the sound of trumpets blown by Joshua and his besieging army.

The main facts, the excavators report, are historically correct as given in the Old Testament. While the Israelites were infesting the city, Joshua had set his sappers and miners to work tunnelling under the walls, undermining them and placing tree trunks where they could do the most good. Then, when everything was ready, the general marched his army around, blowing the trumpets to create a diversion, while the fires were lighted. The walls soon crumbled and fell and the city itself was destroyed by fire, as the Scriptures tell.

If the new interpretation changes the emphasis from religious faith to practical, scientific fighting, it does not detract any from this generation's admiration for doughty old Joshua.

There are now about 90,000 miles of oil lines spanning the United States representing an investment of about $700,000,000. One of the longest is 1,300 miles from Oklahoma oil fields to refineries in Philadelphia.

The original District of Columbia, which was 10 miles square, included a tract south of the Potomac ceded by Virginia. The present District of Columbia, comprised of about 70 square miles, is entirely in Maryland.

Members of the House of Representatives and the Senate are paid monthly.

IT HAPPENED Friday night when city officials were thinking of cutting the fog up in chunks and storing it away for a dry spell next summer . . . two fellows, a bit foggy themselves, coming from opposite directions, bumped into one another . . . "excuse it," . . . "Not at all, s'my error," . . . "by the way, wheream I?" . . . "um, y'r in Wisconsin supplace," . . . "thanks—anything I can do for you?" . . . "Yeah—WHO am I?" . . . "Sorry, but I'm a stranger here myself" . . . "oh" . . .

Northern Europe has been terrorized by a mysterious poison-fog which has killed several people. As yet, however, no accusing glances have been directed toward Mr. Mussolini.

But This Is the Age of Speed

Love is blind, very blind. Witness the lad in California who had to wire back to a town in Arizona to find out the full name of the lady he married.

Milwaukee officials must ride in automobiles costing not over one thousand dollars. It just goes to show how civic officials must suffer when a city is comparatively well managed. Imagine such a thing in Chicago. Tish tish and pooh pooh.

"This," said the C. E. as he walked past our desk Saturday, "is a dangerous practice."

"What is?" we wanted to know—thinking of any number of things.

"This business of leaving cigarettes out on your desk." And the C. E. helped himself.

Just why, when, the unemployed in a city start mob proceedings, they always begin on the city hall or something like it, is a mystery to us. Generally, the money is tied up in banks and the jobs are largely in factories. Witness Berlin.

The university has scheduled Auburn, a southern school, as one of the major home attractions for next fall. While second-guessing is a little distasteful, we can't help but wonder what the heck—who is Auburn? And what's the matter with Alabama, one of the South's best, whom Wisconsin trimmed a few seasons ago?

Wild Bill gets almost hysterical when he thinks of the lady in Hollywood who always has to leave a party early—about 4:30 a. m.—so she can be home in time to let the children in at 5 a. m. They're only 16 and 17, so she doesn't trust them with a key as yet.

Today's Anniversary

ELI WHITNEY'S BIRTH
 On Dec. 8, 1765, Eli Whitney, an American inventor, famous for his invention of the cotton gin, was born at Westboro, Mass.

Graduated from Yale in 1792, Whitney went to Georgia as a teacher, where he found he had a generous patron in the widow of General Nathaniel Greene of Revolutionary fame, on whose estate he resided and studied law. While here, he was encouraged to display his inventive genius and at the request of some neighbors of Mrs. Green he attempted to devise a machine for separating the seed from the fiber of the cotton. After he had built the machine from hand-made tools, it was stolen by thieves who had broken into his workshop. Thus, he was unable to get a patent for it. He then went to Connecticut to manufacture cotton gins but litigation growing out of the claims of imitators consumed his profits. Later, he established a firearms factory at Whitneyville, near New Haven, Conn., and maintained it with success. Whitney enjoyed but little material reward from the gin, which immediately proved one of the most important inventions connected with the cotton manufacture.

WHAT DIFFERENCE DOES A LITTLE WATER MAKE?

Hi, there, reader. Suppose your nearest and dearest should faint in the bath tub tonight, and you find the victim has ceased breathing. Are you prepared to give him or her the best possible change to recover? If you are sure of your capability; all right. I congratulate you. It is a fine thing to help one sleep nights. But if you are not so sure you can do the right thing in such an emergency, then I beg you to write in right now, saying please send your resuscitation booklet, and inclose a stamped envelope bearing your address. I will be glad to send you the booklet which gives detailed directions for applying artificial respiration, with pictures to show every essential point, so that you can't go wrong. This booklet belongs in every emergency outfit.

One of the points I deem important in applying Schafer's method (prone pressure) is that the subject's face should be turned toward one side and both arms should rest on the ground above the head and out of the operator's way. This is the correct position which Schafer himself prescribed and Schafer has never approved any modification of his method.

Many instructors teach that it is all right to place one of the subject's arms under the head or chin, which they say lifts the nose and mouth above any water mud or sand which might obstruct the entrance of air. I maintain that it is sufficient, as Schafer himself explained, to turn the subject's face toward one side in order to keep the nose and mouth clear. I maintain further that the elevation of the head by even the width of the wrist or forearm creates a trap in which water or other fluid is likely to be retained in the chest; whereas in the position Schafer prescribes the nose and mouth are at the lowest level, when the body rests on level ground, and any fluid in the breathing passages drains by gravity.

Up to 1929 the American Red Cross and many other organizations approved a manual of instruction in resuscitation in which the first aid worker was advised to begin by lifting the subject in the jack knife position, in order to drain the water from the windpipe and other tubes. Now and again in 1929 this column criticized that performance and pointed out that Schafer's method, when correctly applied, takes care of the drainage of water from the chest, so that it seemed a fatal and inexcusable delay in the attempt to save the victim's life. When the 1919 edition of the resuscitation manual came out the jack knife trick with picture, was missing, and no explanation or apology was made.

Then here late in 1930 I attempted to get a bit of moral support from Professor Henderson, Yandell Henderson, than whom there is no better authority on resuscitation. But the professor dashed my hopes. He said he thinks it is well to put the subject's arm under the head, especially where the resuscitation is in a mine, because there are apt to be puddles of water on the ground, and an unconscious man might drown if his nose and mouth were allowed to rest in such a puddle. Besides, this great authority told me, a little water in the lungs is not important, because it is quickly absorbed anyway.

This took the wind completely out of my sails. I confess. Unfortunately, I had been citing Prof. Yandell Henderson as a leading authority in my talks about various aspects of the subject, so I couldn't turn right around and begin calling him names. But I bided my time.

Biding seems to be one of my favorite indoor sports. If I had all the time I've bided, to spend on a vacation I could have one grand old vacation today. But in the case of Professor Henderson I didn't have to bide a terrible long while, before I found a good snappy come back, and I'm going to spung it here, if I am not cut out to fit in my customary limited space.

If a few spoonfuls of water in the windpipe or deeper in the lungs are of no importance—well, by gosh, the Red Cross and allied bodies owe us some explanation, at least, for the curious jack knife stunt. If a little water in the lungs is quickly absorbed, that is, quickly enough to be of any help in getting the victim breathing again, doesn't that invalidate the professor's argument that a hand or arm should go under the head to lift the nose and mouth out of the puddle of water? What harm if the victim breathes in a little water? Wouldn't it be quickly absorbed anyway?

Really I am still hopeful that my friend the professor will concede me the point. At any rate, he offers no objection to the Schafer method proper where you have dry ground or a clean floor under you.

If a little water in the subject's chest is not of much importance why modify Schafer's method at all?

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.
Tuberculosis and Houses.
 A house into which we expect to move was occupied about a year ago by a family in which there was a case of tuberculosis . . . (Dr. J. J.)

Answer.—Ordinary housecleaning, and repainting or papering, is ample protection for your family. The floor, walls or furniture of the room or rooms occupied by the patient are not at all contaminated if the patient is intelligent or well cared for. If the patient is not intelligent or not properly cared for, then any possible risk of infection of subsequent occupants of the room or rooms will be absolutely prevented by ordinary soap and water housecleaning, and an ordinary airing or sunning if sunshine is available.

Sparkling.
 Please tell me if sparkling grape juice is all right to serve for dinner. Is this good for the stomach if used daily? (Mrs. S.)

Answer.—If the "sparkling" is imparted to the beverage by carbonating it, as soda water is carbonated at the fountain, it is O. K. But not if the "sparkling" is brought about by fermentation.

Maybe Some Near-Doctor Said So.
 I suffer from indigestion. I was told this is because my digestive organs are not in the condition they should be, and that a course of adjustments . . . (H. V. B.)

Answer.—Some of these near-doctors are wizards at diagnosis. You have only to complain that you have no pep and they will tell you at once that you are run down and low in vitality. Don't be a ninnymonger. No real doctor, no honest healer, can or will promise that any treatment will cure you. No healer can guarantee a cure. Don't be so credulous.

Lump on the Wrist.
 Just below the wrist bone on my left wrist I have a lump which feels like gristle. It has been there about a year and seems to protrude more at times and feel a little sore. (G. W.)

Answer.—Probably a ganglion, commonly called "weeping sinew." If so, the only remedy is incision under local anesthetic and removal of the sac. In some cases ganglion disappears spontaneously after several years. An old Spanish custom, very Spanish, was to tense the wrist by flexing it sharply and then strike the lump a sharp blow with the back of the Bible—but this treatment is seldom feasible nowadays, because it is so difficult to find a suitable book. ## The Tynmites

By Hal Cochran

The boys who brought the basin in stood near and both began to grin. No wonder! It was funny just to watch the Tynmites. They splashed around to wash real clean and Clowney said, "I'm not so keen for water that is freezing cold. I'll bet we all look sights."

"I've spilled the water everywhere, but what's the difference? I don't care, as long as we are going to eat when all this washing's done. Why don't they have a swimming pool. I'd much prefer that, as a rule, I

A BYSTANDER IN WASHINGTON

BY HERBERT PLUMMER

Washington—The great and near-great in Washington come and go with the shifting political tide, but there is a not inconsiderable group in the capital who somehow manage to weather all storms.

Veterans of all things political are these people and recognized as vital parts of the Washington structure. They bear the titles of secretaries, executive assistants and the like. One encounters them in offices of cabinet members, in suites of senators, in one-room quarters of congressmen.

No one does more to aid the business of keeping the country intelligently informed on government affairs than these non-political attaches.

There is, for example, "Bill" Beck—assistant to Secretary of State Stimson. Beck is one of those rarities in near cabinet circles. He first attracted the attention of Secretary Lansing while he was doing a job on the peace mission in Paris.

When Lansing resigned, Secretary Colby retained this efficient youngster as secretary. Under Secretary Hughes he was elevated to assistant to the secretary, then passed on to Secretary Kellogg and finally handed to Secretary Stimson.

AT CAPITOL, TOO
 And there's John Martyn, assistant to the secretary of war. Martyn came to the war department with Secretary Weeks. Dwight Davis retained him when he became secretary.

James Good announced at one of his first press conferences that he would keep him. And when Secretary Good died in office his successor, Secretary Hurley, made it known that Martyn was to continue at his post.

At the capital there may be found illustrations just as striking. John Hayes was brought to the capital from Indiana by Senator Beveridge, who regarded him as a promising youth. He served as secretary to Beveridge and now is with Senator Watson, the republican leader.

Big, jovial Bill Sault was with Senator McLean of Connecticut while he was in the senate. And when McLean retired from public life he told his successor, Walcott, that Sault, Bill is now carrying on for Walcott.

MANY OTHERS
 Roy Rankin acted as secretary to Kenyon of Iowa when he was in the senate. Now he is serving in the same capacity with another Iowa—Senator Brookhart.

Mad John Sims was the late Senator Tyson's secretary and upon his death went automatically over to Senator Brock of Tennessee, Tyson's successor.

And Lona Wells, one of the first women to serve as secretary to a United States senator, upon the death of Senator Warren of Wyoming stepped in and did the same thing for Sen. Pat Sullivan.

There are others—many of them. All of which seems to show that a good man—even be in politics—has not a great deal of fear in American public service.

Seen And Heard In New York

BY RICHARD MASSOCK

New York—Dinosaurs twist their long tails, Will Rogers swings his rope and a doll pours milk out of a pail at the mere turn of an electric switch in an old armory building on west side Manhattan.

It's headquarters for the papier mache menageries some big department stores display to lure Christmas shoppers by child-appeal.

The plant is that of G. H. Messmore and Joseph A. Damon, a pair of middle-western men who specialize in mechanical reproductions of animals, historic characters or what you wish.

Ordinarily the days just before Christmas are rather dull there, with most of the animals out showing off. But this year it still is busy making hazards for miniature golf courses—dragon heads, whales, toadstools, hollow logs and other snares for dubbed shots.

AUTOMATIC ANIMALS
 Industrial expositions, department store circuses and pageants are supplied with floats and images.

Amos 'n' Andy occupy one corner of the crowded storeroom, that looks like an animated museum, and crows that "moo" are stabled nearby.

In the workshop papier mache horses are being made to support the medieval armor display of the Metropolitan museum.

One room is given over to a display of tableaux depicting the history of transportation from the Indian drag to the first flight of the Wrights at Kittyhawk. Here the figures are carved of wood. Two years of research, a year of work on the images and $150,000 are in this one display alone.

The creators are trying to induce the government to send it to Paris for a forthcoming exposition there.

The various creatures of Messmore and Damon are all expensive. A 50-foot dinosaur, capable of 200 movements of body and tail, cost $35,000. Other specimens that look as though they had just walked out of a zoo are a little cheaper.

The makers have never tried to sell any of them. They are content to rent them out.

SCULPTO-MECHANOLOGIST
 Messmore, who came from Detroit, is the mechanical genius of the pair. Damon, a native of Vermont, Ill., is the artist who makes the exterior look natural.

Both broke into their work in the theater, Messmore as a stage-hand, Damon as a scenic artist. They first met at the Hudson-Fulton celebration here in 1909 and combined their talents in 1917. Now they call themselves sculpto-mechanologists.

Their early work, together was mostly in the California movie studios. There they built their pet dinosaur for the exploitation of "The Lost World" film.

Their newest creation is a mechanical golfer.

The showrooms are like a gigantic toy shop some to life when the animals, clowns and dolls are set in motion.

Thousands of school children drop in throughout the year to gaze enviously at the zoological reproductions.

MORE MAN POWER AND BETTER PAY URGED FOR NAVY

Regular Promotions Would Prevent "Stagnation," Adams States

Washington (AP)—Secretary Adams sailed straightaway into a statement of the wants of the navy for men and money in his annual report. Addressing President Hoover, he called for more man power, better pay and promotions at regular intervals to prevent the "stagnation" of officers through long periods in the same grade.

The navy secretary pointed out that the present level of compensation was 11 per cent above that received in 1908, but said the cost of living had more than doubled since that time.

Other legislative proposals for which he advocated Congressional approval included:

- Authorization to modernize the battleships New Mexico, Mississippi and Idaho.
- Establishment of a naval airship base on the Pacific coast.
- Guarantees for conservation of the naval petroleum and oil shale reserves.

Bans against photograph, sketches or maps of vital military and naval defense installations and equipment.

The increasing importance of aviation to the naval forces was evident throughout the report. A 6-plane patrol unit will be added to both battle and scouting fleets, and two scouting squadrons of 20 planes and 12 planes, respectively, will be attached to new light cruisers.

"A need exists for additional air-plane carriers in order to exploit to the full the possibilities of naval aviation in operations with the fleet," Adams said. A west coast air base was considered essential and selection of a site was urged upon congress at an early date, whether or not the navy ordered construction of a new giant dirigible.

During the year, the number of enlisted men was not adequate to man fully all types of ships, and it was necessary to operate most types of ships with allowances which were considerably under the actual complement of the ships.

The allowances averaged but $7.9 per cent of the actual complement of the ships, which the secretary said "does not keep a navy fully prepared for war."

Although Ernest Lee Jahncke, assistant secretary, has been active in curtailing work at naval shore stations as an economy measure, the report found there were "more navy yards on the west coast than could be economically maintained."

The undertaking of a submarine replacement program was proposed. During the past year, upkeep costs have increased. The report added that "due principally to the age of a large number of submarines, it is felt, the performance of submarine engineering material is not commensurate with its maintenance costs."

The material condition of the fleet was seen as generally good, qualified by the difficulty of maintaining efficiency "due to the age of a large number of the ships." Destroyers and submarines were found to be in the least efficient condition.

The secretary praised the efficiency of the Guardia Nacional of Nicaragua as being "in accordance with a definite policy to build up a native constabulary capable of preserving order after the eventual withdrawal of marine forces in Nicaragua."

"A distinct improvement in almost every phase of the health of the Navy," was found an encouraging sign. Only 394 deaths were recorded during 1929 making the death rate from all causes 3.36 per 1,000.

People have found out that new-fangled ideas and notions don't break up colds. So millions have turned back to first principles and use what they know breaks one up in a jiffy. Even a "little" cold is too dangerous to trifle with.

The thing to do is to get Hill's Cascara Quinine at any drug store. Take two tablets now. Then follow directions on box. Drink lots of water, too—that's all.

Soon you'll start to feel like a new person. Things will loosen up, your head will clear, aching go—you'll be back on the job with a wallop.

WARNING SIGNS PUZZLE PUBLIC

Many Motorists Don't Know Meaning of Guides, Says Commission

Madison — "That the traveling public generally does not understand the meaning of the various guide and warning signs erected by state highway departments along main highways," was the statement made by the State Highway Commission today. "Such signs are intended to convey intelligently by their shape as well as by the words that may be painted on them," continues the statement.

About 1925 the necessity of the standardization of warning signs along highways became apparent, and the American Association of State Highway Officials, which includes the highway departments of forty-eight states and the U. S. Bureau of Public Roads, took the matter in hand. Their studies resulted in the following standards:

1. The square sign (24"x34") which is used to warn the public of hazards not of the road itself but near the road. These are the type

The Story of Sue

by MARGERY HALE

© 1929 BY NEA SERVICE, INC.

THE note on Sarah's pin cushion was from the girl, not Doctor Burton. Sarah spread it out and read it, with her elbows propped on the surface of the dressing table and her face resting in her hands. When she finished she gazed into her own eyes and smiled rather mistily.

"She has spunk. And she has courage. Courage! That's the most important thing in life. The going on and on and on, being brave when nobody cares! Poor kid!"

She read the note again. It was rather long.

"You meant all right and thanks a lot. I'm rather glad Bill Burton has the lowdown on the dressing table now that he has. But I can't marry him. Not knowing he thinks he's doing his duty. I haven't got much but I know how to spell pride. He doesn't know what I'm writing He's waiting for me and it would bring your heart to see him. He's so surprised and kind of frightened and everything and he thinks he'll have to have a justice of peace tie a knot now for sure. Not much! Well, anyway, I'll get to keep the kid and Bill will have to pay now that he knows about it. I'm sorry we got into this jam."

There the note stopped. Where the three had gone Sarah didn't know. She tore the paper into pieces and threw them on the embers, her lips curving crookedly as she saw a flagrant patch of Piero's costume that had escaped the blaze. Suddenly she stooped over, picked it up, and getting her pocketbook, stuffed it into a corner.

When she went to Sue's office the next morning to tell her of the outcome of her plan she found Sue sitting at the switchboard desk, watching a line of girls who sat in the brown leather chairs of the waiting room.

"What's up?" Sarah asked curiously. "A Follies' chorus trying to get reduced rates on divorces by taking them in quantities..."

"I'm going to have an assistant," Sue interrupted listlessly.

"You don't look very happy about it."

"I'll miss Miss Parsons... Mrs. Thornton, I mean." Inwardly Sue was thinking something entirely different. The office wouldn't be the same with another girl in it. A stranger would have the eager interest in the affairs of the Thorntons.

"Oh, I know I had to begin some time, too," she told herself with honest candor. "but that was different. And there was Jack..."

She stopped to analyze her own thoughts. That was just it. She didn't want any other girl coming in contact with Jack all the day long. She would be leaving after while to marry him, but she wanted his secretary to be older and sedate. It was foolish, she knew.

The prettiest girl in the group, one whose eyes were a queer, slaty gray and whose hair was rust colored, came strolling over to Sue's desk.

"I don't want to see Judge Thornton," she said. Give me his son. I've always wanted to meet that man. Between you and me, I'm not after this job at all. I just want an introduction to Jack! Can you keep a secret if I tell you one?"

NEXT: The Secret.

ASK $100,000 TO KEEP LIQUOR FROM INDIANS

Washington — (P) — The bureau of Indian affairs believes the Indian is particularly susceptible to the use of intoxicants which, it says, "not only renders him unfit for gainful occupation, home life, or other useful and proper activities, but arouses his criminal instincts and makes him a menace to society in general." Therefore, the interior department supply bill for next fiscal year carries $100,000 for suppressing liquor traffic among the 340,000 Indians and provides $163,000 for salaries of 265 Indian police on reservations.

Samuel M. Dodd, budget officer, testified before the interior appropriations sub-committee:

"We now have on duty a liquor-suppression force consisting of a chief special officer, 16 special officers, and three deputy special officers, in addition to various possemen and undercover men."

Our Children

By Angelo Patri

AVOID THE OFFENSE

Children are naughty at times. They seem to choose the most inopportune times. If we have company, if we take them out, they misbehave. That is not their fault.

Children are easily fatigued. In the first place they have not the reserve energy that grownup people have. They use their as it comes and before they know what is happening the supply is exhausted and they are in distress. Naughtiness is usually the result of such fatigue.

Strange conditions tire children. They have to put out far more energy in a new situation than they would in a familiar one. It will not weary a child to visit the grandmother he sees every other day but it will exhaust him to go a short distance to see one he does not see more than once a year. These things must be taken into consideration.

Changing a child's bedtime is a strong factor in this sort of trouble. The child's body is set for a certain space of time and when that time passes he lets down. He has to. Changing any bodily habit fatigues a child. Any new situation calls for great exertion on his part and fatigues him greatly. The adult may be quite fresh and wonder what ails the child. What ails him is the difference in the reserve store of energy. The adult has much, the child, none.

Fatigue brings on all sorts of trouble. The child will be cross. He will fight and howl. Perhaps he will dance about and laugh loudly. In any case he will pay no attention to anything anybody says to him. The only thing to do is to lay hold of him, escort him to a quiet place, soothe him as well as one can, and get him to bed.

It is not wise, it certainly will not help, to spank a tired child. That will add to the trouble instead of lessening it because the excitement depletes his energy still further. Keep quiet. Soothe the child. Nothing else will help. The real help lies in avoiding the cause. Prevent the child from being over tired.

Stick to the child's schedule rather closely. Vary his monotony but hold to its hours. Try not to shift the hours of rising or retiring. "Make mealtime a ritual. Do not take very young children on long trips, unless you are obliged to do so, as travel fatigues a child. Let his life run along as smoothly as possible and he will not have tantrums.

Consider the people who meet the children. Avoid those who tease, those who chide, those who ask questions that they dare not ask an adult. When people whose example is not good for children come to the house arrange to have the children cared for in another room. If the guests are temperamental keep the children from them for nothing so disturbs a child as a fussy, uneven tempered person.

Have no fear of coddling the children. When you have done all you can to avoid stirring up their worst emotions there will still be enough cause for them to rear their ugly heads. When you have sheltered and protected and guided the children as well as you know how there will still be enough of life's woes to burden them. The least we can do is to avoid the cause of evil, be it person, place or thing.

LOVELY ARMS A NECESSITY FOR EVENING

BY ALICIA HART

"Arms and the Man" is an old and well-known subject. But what arms mean to the beauty of women is a much neglected one.

With more formality in the air, and evening clothes imperative after the electric lights are lit, arms are high-lighted and their beauty is quite as important as facial beauty.

If you have freckled arms, try some reliable freckle remover. You may have forgotten how the little brown spots dot your arms. But others do not overlook them.

THEY NEED MASSAGE

If your arms are harsh and the skin far from velvety, you should be willing to massage your arms, nourish them with soft creams, care for them gently and persistently until they grow more pleasing to the touch.

Many women have rough skin on their upper arms which might be likened in appearance to perpetual goose flesh. This is due to the horny cells of the skin. If it is not a serious case, try washing nightly with a soap substitute. Then rub the soap substitute in and leave it on all night.

If this rough skin persists, mix green soap with your favorite nourishing cream and scrub your arms gently with a skin brush. When you have rubbed the mixture into the skin, cut strips of old linen and bind up the arms. Leave the bandages on a few days. Wash the arms carefully in tepid water and grease the skin carefully, because the skin probably will be slightly inflamed. But it will be soft and the inflammation will disappear.

ONLY AN EXPEDIENT

This is not a permanent cure, however. But you can repeat it when you are getting ready for a party and want especially nice arms. Only be sure to do it about five or six days before the party, so the inflammation will be gone.

Bleaching can be used on the arms quite as easily and as efficaciously as on the face and neck. If you can get into the habit of considering the arms and hands as of equal importance to the face and neck, then you are on the high road to becoming one of those women everyone envies, the well-groomed type.

We have taken up the matter of elbows. But it is impossible to mention the arms without repeating that elbows should be nourished, bleached and massaged quite as much as the rest of the arm. There is beauty in arms, and you can have it.

My Neighbor Says--

Ebony stain for furniture is made by dissolving one ounce of shellac in a pint of alcohol. When it is thoroughly dissolved, add lampblack until the mixture is of the desired thickness. When ebonyizing wood, give several coats of gray priming paint, letting each coat dry thoroughly, then apply ebony stain with a brush; let dry and then polish with woolen cloth.

A tough fowl may be converted into very delicious dishes if it is first boiled for soup, then minced when cold for croquettes. In boiling, allow a quart of cold water for each pound of chicken and set on stove where it will heat very slowly.

Always make sure that an omelet is loosened from the sides of the pan before turning out. Hold omelet pan firm while slipping omelet onto platter.

To brown flour, spread on a tin plate set in a hot oven. Open door of oven frequently and stir flour so that it will not burn. It is a good plan to brown a cupful of flour at a time and keep in glass jar for thickening gravies.

INSULATE YOUR ATTIC WITH INSULITE

the Wood-Fiber Insulating Board

YOU can do it yourself if you know how to use a hammer and saw, and you'll enjoy the work.

The large, rigid panels of this all wood-fiber insulating board are easily, quickly and economically applied.

Lining the attic with INSULITE saves fuel in winter, insures summer comfort, and converts waste space into livable and useful quarters.

And remember—tests prove that INSULITE—a full 1/2 inch thick—gives 12 1/2% more efficient insulation than ordinary 7/16 inch insulating boards. And in another test the four best known insulating boards were tested for strength, and INSULITE proved to be 14% stronger than any.

Ask us about the many other practical uses of this strong and efficient insulation.

SEND READING CIRCLE BOOKS TO TEACHERS

Copies of The Child Centered School, the second of a list of books which must be read by teachers of the rural schools of Outagamie-co, in connection with reading circle work, are being mailed this week to teachers from the office of the county superintendent of schools. A limited number of copies of the book are available and teachers are only to keep the book 10 days and then return it to Mr. Meating's office so that another teacher can get the volume. Each teacher must read three professional books and six books from the children's list during the year.

Have You Heard —

An inexpensive and pleasing gift for a woman who has a pet bird is a little cage to throw over the bird cage nights to keep off draughts and light.

You can make one of a square yard of figured glazed chintz, cretonne or any other pretty material, preferably of material with a dark background to make out the light.

Cut a small hole in the center of the material and slit the goods down one side from this hole to the outside. This allows you to slip the cover around the bird cage easily.

Finish the outer edge, the opening and the center hole with rick-rack braid, picot edge of contrasting banding. Put a snap at the top and the bottom of the opening to fasten the cover around the cage. And put four tassels to finish the corners and at the same time to weight the cover enough to hold it down.

WE WOMEN

BY BETTY BRANNER PICTURE FRAMES

A picture frame, to my mind, is something more than a mere device to hold a picture.

Into the tiny limits of a frame we women may compress our entire lives and worlds.

We frame a picture of some one dead or living, near and dear to us, and the frame becomes almost sacred, firm and yet beautifully fragile, silent but wonderfully eloquent.

The picture in it catches our eyes and stirs the imagination. But it is not of the pictures that I would write. There are certain delicacies and charms and by products of existence, almost insignificant in themselves, which contribute to our joy and happiness we derive from life.

Wherefore, I sing this song of appreciation to picture frames. We women, perhaps make more use of picture frames than men. We are constituted that way.

It is not a crime to be emotional or sentimental. It is a crime against truth to deny that we are.

Poets write odes to stars and trees and birds and pipes and tobacco and even to women. Books have received their tribute. Fireplaces and the blazing intrigues of

FLIERS IMPRESSED BY PARACHUTE RESULTS

Rome—(AP)—Parachutes have shown themselves fully effective, having saved 57 airmen in 25 months say experts of the ministry of air. The complete record of military air crashes, the ministry announces, shows that parachutes opened and brought down properly their users all but seven cases, in which the pilots jumped when less than 500 meters from the ground.

There were 58 crashes and 10 deaths. Seven of these were of the pilots who jumped too late. Two came down into water. One came down safely with his parachute, but his plane fell on him.

A well drilled near Logan, Utah, to supply a grade school produced water at 115 degrees Fahrenheit.

Lindberghs Occupy Rented Home On New Jersey Farm

BY LAURA LOU BROOKMAN

Princeton, N. J.—America's most famous young married couple have settled down to housekeeping on an old fashioned New Jersey farm.

Nowadays it's no uncommon thing for the neighbors to be called in to see a man who is known as an aviator than as a farmer—parachuted and with sleeves rolled up out tinkering around the plane or one of the two cars standing in the rickety shed which does service as a garage.

A butler, cook and nurse for the domestic staff of the celebrated "flying ambassador." When Mrs. Lindbergh wants to borrow a cup of sugar or a couple of eggs to finish a quick cake it will be necessary to send down the road a quarter of a mile to the Stanley Terhune home.

The Terhunes are the nearest neighbors. A mile down the road in the other direction live Dr. and Mrs. Edwin Northrup. Other neighbors are still farther removed.

NEIGHBORS OBJECT TO TRAFFIC

The neighbors will tell you that the new-comers are a nice, quiet couple, looked upon to become a credit to the community. Most of the other residents on Rosedale Road are fruit growers, raising peaches and apples.

What these neighbors do object to is the new traffic problem.

Sundays in particular, but on week days too, there is a constant procession of motor cars slowly winding along Rosedale Road. Some of the drivers park and wait for hours in hope that the blue-winged bi-plane will take off. So far there have been no Sunday flights.

Last Sunday the cars were so numerous that a state trooper was called upon to direct traffic. Some of the curious brought field glasses. They didn't want to move on according to the trooper's orders. It's a narrow road, ordinarily little traveled, and these tourists are making it bad for the farmers who haul apples to market.

IS OLD-FASHIONED HOUSE

What the tourists see is a severe old three-story farm house built of white with green shutters at windows behind which hang frilled white curtains. There is a board fence painted white enclosing the "front yard" of the place and back of the house stands an aged windmill. A flagstone walk leads from the back door to the road. There are a few straggling shade trees beside the house and in the rear stand half a dozen unpainted farm buildings, none in the best of condition. The farm includes 90 acres of land.

The Lindberghs chose the site of their new home not as other home-builders making arduous pilgrimages to motor and on foot. They flew over the territory and made their selection from the air. The tract they own includes 350 acres and will probably be expanded to 500. It is on the third ridge north of Princeton on the Stoutsburg-Wertsburg road. The site is the second highest location in New Jersey. In the center of the tract is an open field which will be used for landing. All about the country is thickly wooded making it practically inaccessible except by air.

TOP SECURITIES OF CONSOLIDATED GAS HAVE HIGH RATING

Only Direct Funded Debt Is 5 1/2 Per Cent Debenture of 50 Million

BY GEORGE T. HUGHES

Copyright, 1930, by Cons. Press

(This is the seventh article of a series on the subject of public utilities, covering the principal operating and holding companies giving their history, field of operations and an analysis of the capital structure. Mr. Hughes will discuss bonds as well as stocks but will present the facts without any attempt to recommend purchase or sale of specific securities.)

New York—The senior securities of the Consolidated Gas Company of New York enjoy so high an investment rating that they require little discussion. The only direct funded debt is a 5 1/2 per cent debenture bond outstanding to the amount of $50,000,000 and selling to yield less than 5 per cent. The bonds of the subsidiaries are equally high grade and fluctuate in market price only with changes in the money rate. More or less the same is true of the preferred stock of the parent company which is a no par $5 cumulative issue also selling to yield less than 5 per cent. That leaves the common stock for consideration and few would deny it an investment rating. As with other common stocks, however, the market price fluctuates over a wide range.

At the height of the speculation in the public utilities last year Consolidated Gas common sold above $183 a share and at the low this year when the liquidating movement was in full force it sold under $82 a share, a swing of more than one hundred points. Somewhere between these extremes the real value lies but just where no one can say. The company is not only one of the largest utilities in the world with over a billion dollars in assets but it has a record of steady growth. The territory served, the greater part of New York City and a portion of Westchester County, is one of constantly increasing population and so presents a constantly increasing demand for electric power and light and for gas service.

There is not much danger of over-estimating the importance of the field of operation in analyzing a utility issue and on this account Consolidated Gas stock is entitled to sell on a higher price earnings ratio than the average member of its group. Shareholders can also look forward to the receipt from time to time of valuable rights to furnish new capital which rights if sold in the open market are in effect additional income.

NEW "GIANT" THREAT

London—Pino Carnera came out of Italy to try boxing, fairs a treat and to herald the march of huge heavyweight boxers. He has a reach of 81 inches.

W. G. Stockton, 72, Recently Received an A. B. Degree at Southeastern State Teachers' College, Durant, Okla.

Chicago—(AP)—Young John Bryan, grandson of the "Commoner," is following the Bryan tradition of painting word pictures for people.

He has ascended the Shakespearean stage at the Civic theater here, playing lesser roles.

Thirty-five years ago William Jennings Bryan, then a handsome, black-haired youth lately from Salem, Ill., has begun to make the Nebraska prairies echo with reverberations of a voice that was to maintain its famous echo for more than three decades.

The elder Bryan then was winning the title of "boy orator of the Platte." A year or two later he took down his obscure lawyer's shingle in Lincoln, Neb., and became the democratic candidate for president.

John Bryan grew up under his grandfather's eye in Florida. His mother is Mrs. Ruth Bryan Owen, recently re-elected congresswoman from Florida. He is her son by a former marriage. His grand-uncle, Charles W. Bryan, is Nebraska's governor-elect.

He studied decorative art in Paris and New York, but decided he wanted to make the stage his career. He began in little theaters in North Carolina, and played last season with a stock company in Madison, Wis.

There he met Fritz Leibler, who liked his work so well that he engaged him as a member of the Civic theater company for this season just beginning.

Young Bryan plays Lorenzo in "The Merchant of Venice," Claudius in "Julius Caesar" and similar roles. His work, for a beginner, is called good.

He doesn't want to remain in Shakespearean roles all his life, he says, but was eager for this opportunity because he thinks it a good way to develop his talents.

YOUTHS INJURED BY SHOTS WHILE HUNTING RABBITS

High School Boys Accidentally Shoot Each Other in Swamp

Special to Post-Crescent
New London—Four hunters, aiming at the same rabbit, missed the fleeing bunny but succeeded in peppering each other with shots in the swamp near Dale. The six boys, after arriving in the swamp, separated. Clifford Schmitz, a freshman in New London high school, received 100 pellets of number 6 shot in his legs and a few in the abdomen. Russell Gorges was badly peppered with the small shot, most of which he received in the face, hands and legs. It was difficult to determine which of the hunters' charges had caused the accident, as all four guns discharged at about the same time and were aimed in the same direction. The other members of the party were Orville and Wyman Schmitz, brothers of Clifford and Vernon Greutzmacher a relative of the Gorges boy.

Though suffering severe pain the boys were able to walk to their car and were brought at once to New London where the lead pellets were removed. They returned later to their homes. The boys are sons of Herman Gorges and Herman Schmitz, Caledonia farmers. The accident occurred at about 10 o'clock Sunday morning.

SUPREME COURT MUST DETERMINE OWNER OF ETHER

Existence of Radio Commission Depends Upon High Court Decision

BY ROBERT MACK
Copyright, 1930
Washington—(CPA)—Who owns the ether?—the question that is baffling fourth dimension in radio is squarely before the supreme court for the first time, with the very existence of the federal radio commission dependent on the outcome.

Tens of millions invested in radio broadcasting and in other types of radio stations will be affected by the verdict of the nation's highest tribunal, for it will determine whether or not a station has a property right in the ether. And in the same decision the court will determine the constitutionality of the law which created the radio commission.

Arguments on this paramount question in radio jurisprudence were heard Friday by the court. Impressive claims of opposites counsel in two test cases, certified by the circuit court of appeals in Chicago, involving stations of that city, were heard by the court before it took the case under advisement.

CALLS ETHER THEORY
Solicitor General Thomas D. Thacher called the ether merely "a scientific theory." It is absurd, he argued, to claim there is a property right to something that does not physically exist. By counsel for appellants the court was told of "an unlawful delegation of power" to the commission which permits that body to destroy thousands and even millions of dollars invested in broadcasting by issuing an order revoking licenses.

The cases were those of station WCRW, operated by Clinton R. White, in Chicago, which was arbitrarily reduced in power from 500 to 100 watts, and of station WDBM-WO, the same city, ordered off the air by the commission, both actions being taken pursuant to the radio law and both designed to improve radio reception. The cases were first appealed in 1928, when the commission orders became effective.

Whereas the radio law congress instructed the commission to clean up broadcasting by eliminating stations if need be, Henry K. Udon, representing the White station, and George W. Swann counsel for the American Bond & Mortgage Co., on behalf of WDBM-WO, contended that no provision had been made to compensate for property, in the nature of stations, equipment, goodwill, and the like, which had been "destroyed" by commission order. The fifth amendment, they argued, provides for due process of law, and therefore the radio act was invalid.

Solicitor General Thacher, however, stated that even if a property right for a broadcasting station were decreed, the courts would be unable to protect it. A station in Canada might "jump" to the United States, since there is no binding treaty preventing it, and destroy the latter's reception and, in effect, its property. Yet there would be no recourse to American jurisdiction for relief, he declared.

All interstate commerce, the solicitor argued, is "subject to the dominant and sovereign power of regulation." Actual physical property has been destroyed by action of congress and the courts, including the supreme court itself, have upheld it, he said.

NEW SNOW FLOW AT BRILLION TO KEEP TOWN ROADS OPEN

Machine Cost $2,250; Expect 3,000 More Feet of Snow Fence

Forest Junction—A Wausau snow plow, purchased by the town of Brillion last spring for use on town roads, was delivered in a rail shipment to Brillion, where the outfit was unloaded Thursday afternoon. The plow, a model A-75, complete with mechanical hoist and wings, cost $2,250. It will be used with a Monarch "75" tractor, purchased by the town last spring, and used over summer for grading, ditching and gravel crushing. There are over 50 miles of roads in the town on which the plow will be operated. With four drivers in readiness, it is proposed to open roads in 24 hours service.

Town roads through cuts are being guarded this winter by 5,000 feet of snow fence. Two thousand feet, in use last winter, are being supplemented by an additional 3,000 feet, which have not been delivered. Fire in the manufactory at Wittenberg last September has been delayed the delivery which was to have been completed about Dec. 1. Only the posts have so far been received. There were set by the various road district superintendents before the ground froze.

The Women's Missionary and Ladies Aid society of Zion Evangelical church renewed its official organization in an annual business session at the church on Thursday afternoon. Mrs. Henry Play as president, Mrs. Robert Melchert as vice president, Mrs. Fred Melchert as recording secretary, and Mrs. Leonard A. Otto as treasurer were reelected. Mrs. E. A. Lutz succeeds Mrs. Levi Broehm as corresponding secretary. The organization has 47 members.

Other church societies are electing their officers this week. Annual election of Sunday school officers was held at the regular forenoon service Sunday. The Christian Endeavor league renews its official calendar in an annual election on Monday evening.

POST OFFICE NOW IN ULSTER

Claims that practically all good post office appointments are going to Belfast men have caused heated feeling in Ulster. At a recent meeting of the Northern Ireland District Council of the Union of Post Office Workers, held in Derry it was pointed out that the establishment of the Northern Government of Ulster would mean the loss of only one Class 3 provincial overseas had received promotion to head postmaster. The head postmaster, ships of Armagh, Ballymena, Coleraine, Cookstown, Derry, Omagh, Portlough, Banagher, Newcastle and Strabane are all held by men from Belfast. In addition other Belfast men were promoted to be assistant postmasters. Delegates to the meeting said that all claims of local men were ignored. Resolutions of protest were sent to the Executive Council of Northern Ireland.

CONGRESS WARNED TO "GO EASY" ON U. S. FUNDS

Washington—(AP)—Congress pushed forward its relief legislation today under a fresh warning against too great liberality with the treasury's funds.

On top of Secretary Mellon's disapproval of the project for paying off veterans' compensation certificates, Senator Borah, Republican, Idaho, yesterday condemned the theory that prosperity could be restored permanently by spending public money. He termed it both false and vicious, warning that with a substantial deficit in sight the money for relief purposes will have to come out of increased taxes.

However, he voiced no disapproval of the pending measures for expanding federal public works and farmers' seed loans, merely urging they be kept to the minimum consistent with the emergency, and that the deficit be met by increasing income taxes, "particularly in the higher brackets."

EVERY DAY WORTH LIVING

There is no illness so oppressive as an imperfectly functioning stomach. Perhaps not serious enough in many cases to be concerning, still severe enough to prevent the fullest enjoyment of every day life and the pleasure of performing ones daily duties. To those persons who have habitual or occasional stomach trouble, such as gastric hyperacidity, sour stomach, gas disturbances, bloating, belching, heartburn, bad breath (halitosis), loss of appetite, was undoubtedly say "Try Prunella's Tablets." To our personal knowledge, this remedy has relieved and corrected hundreds of such cases of stomach trouble, many of which were of a long standing nature. We shall be glad to give further information, and, of course, without obligation, Voigt's Drug Store, Exclusive Agent in Appleton and vicinity.

CHRISTMAS SEAL SALE CAMPAIGN BRINGS RETURNS

Approximately $240 Realized by Monday, Committee Reports

Kaukauna—Returns of the Christmas seal sale are coming in rapidly to the committee in charge, according to Mrs. Olin G. Dryer. Up to Monday morning there was approximately $240 turned in. The seal sale opened on Thanksgiving and will end on Christmas.

Seals were issued to the schools last week. They are being sold there so that the students can purchase them for their own use. Other seals were sent to many local people through the mails.

The sale is conducted annually by the Wisconsin Anti-Tuberculosis Association and is held here under auspices of the health committee of the Kaukauna Woman's club. Part of the proceeds are sent to the Milwaukee headquarters of the association for use in holding free health clinics in various parts of the state. Several of these health clinics have been held here in connection with the seal sale. Half of the money from the seal sale is used locally by the health committee.

Weekly free dental clinics for school children are being conducted here with the money from the sale of seals. Other health work is also done with the seal proceeds.

U. S. ENGINEERS BUILD SHIP FACTORY IN CHILE

Santiago, Chile—(AP)—The first foreign airplane factory built by American aviation interests has been completed here, and work started on its first order of 40 military planes for the Chilean air corps.

During construction of the plant by the Curtiss-Wright export corporation 25 Chilean engineers received instruction at the company's military aircraft factory in Buffalo, N. Y.

They will form the nucleus of the staff, which will be made up of native Chilean labor, though a small group of resident American engineers will supervise plane production.

All the planes on order are military observation ships, but the government contract stipulated that one-half of the order may be changed later to pursuit ships.

SPEND $1,000,000 TO FORTIFY EAST BORDER

Brussels—(AP)—Despite the urgent necessity of cutting down the next budget, the Belgian minister of national defense contemplates a reorganization of the eastern line of fortification.

The strong defensive position of Namur on the right bank of the Meuse will be modernized so as to resist the most violent bombardment by modern artillery and protect the garrison against gas attacks. The total expenditures is estimated at approximately $1,000,000.

The plan is seen as a direct consequence of the recent political rise in Germany of the nationalists whose pronouncements are interpreted here as advocating a war of revenge.

EXPENDITURES OF STATE DURING YEAR WERE $66,519,248

Receipts for Year Were $66,519,248 Governor's Report Shows

Madison—(AP)—In conformity with the requirements of the new budget law, Gov. Walter Kohler today issued a report showing the financial history of the state government during his tenure of office.

The report is divided into four major parts, namely, cash balances in all funds on June 30, 1929; summary of net receipts and net disbursements for all funds from July 1, 1929 to June 30, 1930; condition of the state treasury on June 30, 1930; and the budget for the 50 principal operating funds for 1930-31.

The cash balance on July 1, 1929 was $15,878,375.20. Receipts during 1929-30 totaled $70,735,420.16 and disbursements amounted to $66,519,248.49, making the balance on June 30, 1930, $20,134,546.87.

The total resources available to meet appropriation balances on June 30, 1930, were $17,215,440.20. Cash balances in the four chief operating funds were: General fund, $17,258,968.70; University fund income, $647,816.79; Normal fund income, $72,533.68 and Conservation fund $320,416.18. The cash on hand in the four funds exceeded all continuing appropriation balances and estimated obligations of lapsing balances by $1,014,484.45.

Total receipts for the fiscal year 1929-1930 were $70,735,420.16, received as follows:

Taxes	$27,362,618.60
Boards, Commissions and Departments	2,015,302.95
Charitable and Penal Institutions	1,177,156.05
University of Wis.	3,776,171.93
Normal Schools	425,525.98
Other Educational Activities	431,131.36
County Patients in State Institutions	894,174.19
Agricultural Activities	23,333.49
Conservation fund	594,187.67
Highways money	27,512,353.53
Interest, Grand Army Home and Miscellaneous	469,580.34
Repayment of principal of loans, teachers contributions to annuity funds, etc.	5,587,878.17

Total receipts	$70,735,420.16
Total disbursements of $66,519,248.49 for the fiscal year 1929-30 were divided as follows:
Boards, Commissions & Departments	$4,947,251.01
Charitable & Penal Institutions	4,469,022.54
University of Wis.	8,054,174.22
Normal Schools	2,346,805.74
Other Educational Activities	357,368.14
Charitable Aids	2,098,118.42
Educational Aids	7,809,836.03
Agricultural Aids	1,307,777.94
Conservation fund	869,584.13
Highways	23,670,012.23
Annuity & Investment Board, Teachers' Pensions	688,054.96
Circuit Courts, Veterans Home & Miscellaneous	932,495.91
Investments from Trust funds	6,981,747.16

Total Disbursements	$66,519,248.49
---------------------	-----------------

The gross cash disbursements and bank entries as shown by the secretary of state were $90,014,578.65. Gov. Kohler reconciles this difference by the fact that the secretary of state report does not include interfund transfers of $15,481,476.42, agency transactions of $6,566,299.04 and refunds of receipts and disbursements of $1,447,555.73.

"Money disbursed from one fund and received by another other than by check is called a transfer," Gov. Kohler's report reads. "The resulting book entry adds to the disbursement account and debited and to the receipts of the fund credited without any money debited and to the receipts of the fund credited without any money having been received or disbursed as by the state. If the receipts and disbursements of the state as shown by each of the funds were totaled without deducting these interfund transfers the resulting figure would be in excess of the cash actually received or disbursed by the state. For this reason they are eliminated."

Explaining "agency transactions," Gov. Kohler said the state receives money that is returned to the local units of government. The amount returned in the fiscal year 1929-30 was $6,566,299.04. About refunds of receipts and disbursements, the Governor said:

"From time to time it becomes necessary to return money that has been paid to the state treasurer under protest, in error, or advance payment. Frequently income and inheritance taxes are paid to the state and later by audit or court action returned to the taxpayer. On the other hand, money advanced upon a contract for the construction of a road may later, under audit, be found to have contained an overpayment and the excess payment is returned. All such transactions, either as to the money paid to the state or to money paid out as an overpayment is grouped under the heading of 'refunds.'"

The strong defensive position of Namur on the right bank of the Meuse will be modernized so as to resist the most violent bombardment by modern artillery and protect the garrison against gas attacks. The total expenditures is estimated at approximately $1,000,000.

The plan is seen as a direct consequence of the recent political rise in Germany of the nationalists whose pronouncements are interpreted here as advocating a war of revenge.

BRITISH ARMY SHUTS DOWN ON RUM ISSUES

Aldershot, England—(AP)—Under a new army order—All surplus rum must be returned to stores after liquor has been issued to troops.

"Rum will be issued," the order says, "only by the special authority of the general officer commanding-in-chief when troops have been subjected to exceptionally inclement weather and when in addition they are forced by circumstances to spend the night in adverse conditions."

Army officials say some of the British soldiers are taking a money allowance of about 4c a day in place of the government rum.

LARGE CHICKEN FARM LOCATED IN GREENVILLE

Rumberg and Nelson Have 1,100 Pullets Which Have Started Laying

BY W. F. WINSEY

Greenville—One of the largest and most promising poultry-raising and egg-producing plants in this part of Outagamie-co built the past summer is now being operated in this village by Rumberg and Nelson. The main building and three brooder houses are located in an inclosed yard two acres in extent.

The main building with the basement is three stories high and 24 by 30 feet. Each floor is provided with modern lighting, ventilation, heating, self feeders water tanks, roosts, dropping platforms and nests. The equipment is nearly all steel.

The brooder houses are of the best modern type as are the battery brooders.

Three thousand White Leghorn chicks were started by Rumberg and Nelson in battery brooders last spring and after passing two weeks in these brooders they were moved into the regular brooders in the yard where on warm days they basked in the sunshine about the brooders. At four months of age the cockers and cull pullets were removed from the flock and in fattening pens, were prepared for the market as broilers.

The balance of the flock consisting of 1,100 pullets are divided into three flocks, and each flock occupies one floor of the laying coop. Each flock has started egg production on a satisfactory scale. Most of the pullets are five months old and all of them will be in heavy egg production at six months of age. The firm expects to cull pullets as fast as they stop laying.

Mr. Nelson is marketing eggs in Appleton, Crandon and Milwaukee and is meeting a steady demand, but the prices are unusually low.

POULTRY HOUSES NEED VENTILATION

Chickens May Not Be Stubborn When They Roost on Window Sill

Just because a pullet insists on roosting on the window sill of the poultry house does not always prove that she is stubborn, suggests County Agent Gus Sell.

It may be that she is quite sensible for, no doubt, she has picked the best ventilated place in the whole house for her roost.

When cold weather comes, there is frequently a tendency on the part of some to close the poultry house so tight that no fresh air can get in and the pullet, being accustomed to plenty of fresh air on the range, may go to the window for comfort.

According to J. B. Hayes, of the Wisconsin college of agriculture, care should be taken in housing pullets for the winter. To suddenly change them from their rather open house on the field to a close, unventilated house may spoil their chances for good winter production.

When the air in the laying house becomes stale and moist from lack of ventilation, the birds chill easily and such troubles as colds soon develop. Fresh air, being more dry, feels warmer to the birds. When pullets are comfortable, they eat better and lay better.

When a sudden drop in temperature is expected in the late fall, Hayes suggests saving some of the heat in the laying house by closing the windows but part way. This permits fresh air to come in, the pullets will be warmer and will keep in better health.

A baffle ventilator, such as is recommended for the Wisconsin hen house, if properly installed will provide ventilation without permitting drafts. The county agent advises that he has such plans for this homemade ventilator in his office and that about an hour's work is all that is needed for anyone to install one.

Motorists Advised Not To Use Methyl Alcohol

Madison—People who propose to use methyl alcohol, or methanol, as an anti-freeze mixture for their automobiles this winter should exercise great care both in handling the mixture and in draining it into the car. Blindness has often been reported from a single small dose of methyl alcohol, according to the State Educational Committee of the State Medical Society.

"State legislation should enact laws protecting the people from the use of methyl alcohol," declares the bulletin of the Medical Society today. "In the meantime we are joining with the American Medical Association in a campaign of education to acquaint the people of the state with the dangers that result from the use of methanol. So far, there have been no deaths reported in Wisconsin from this anti-freeze mixture, but investigations which have been conducted in other states, show the hazards and we are taking time to the forelock to warn the people."

"Methanol is a volatile, cumulative poison," declares the bulletin issued jointly by the Wisconsin Medical Society and the Wisconsin Medical Association. "When taken in frequently repeated small doses it induces blindness; in larger doses, whether by the stomach or lungs, it may cause death. The greater part of any quantity of methanol that reaches the lungs is absorbed and the dose sufficient to cause poisoning is not large."

FATHERS AND SONS TO DINE AT SHIOCTON

BY W. F. WINSEY

Shiocton—One of the outstanding events in Outagamie-co this year will be the Fathers' and Sons' banquet in the auditorium of Shiocton high school at 8 o'clock Tuesday evening, Dec. 16.

Tim Main, a senior, has been elected as master of ceremonies. Miss Marjorie Johnson, head of the Home Economics' department of the high school and her class will have charge of the food. Supt. M. P. Manley will give the address of welcome.

One of the fathers will respond to toasts. The evening's program will probably close with games and stunts in which dads and sons participate.

DOGS CAUSE HEAVY LIVESTOCK LOSSES

Kill More Than 7,000 Sheep, 232 Cattle During 1928 and 1929

Madison—A total of over 7,000 sheep, 13 goats, 232 cattle, 450 hogs, and 8,000 ducks, geese, chickens, and turkeys were killed by dogs in this state during the years 1928-29, according to O. J. Thompson, secretary of the department of agriculture and markets. Total indemnities paid to farmers and others by counties for the same period were over $80,000.

A human fondness for dogs keeps many persons from realizing the damage done by their family pets. Mr. Thompson says. Damages done by dogs however resulted in the passing of the dog license law ten years ago whereby every dog owner is required to pay a license fee of one dollar for male dogs and two dollars for females.

Cost of operation and enforcement by the state averages about one per cent, all of the remainder of the money going to the county treasurers where it is used as an insurance fund to pay for the damages reported to the county board. Previous to this provision the losses were often so heavy that many stock raisers were seriously thinking of abandoning their stock raising altogether, Mr. Thompson says.

Since the law was passed in 1920 a total of $284,450 has been paid in indemnities for losses caused by dogs. During that time there have been killed by dogs a total of 29,000 sheep, 57 goats, 732 cattle, 1280 hogs and 21,000 chickens, ducks, geese and turkeys, on which claims for indemnity were presented to the various counties. These claims have in nearly all cases been met by the fund obtained from the dog licensing. Only one county was compelled to make an appropriation to cover additional losses suffered by farmers in that district.

WESTINGHOUSE MAN TO SPEAK AT INSTITUTE

Students at the Institute of paper chemistry and 18 representatives of neighboring mills will hear W. H. Anderson, engineer and chemist, in manufacturing and process section of the Westinghouse Electric company next Tuesday. Mr. Anderson, who has charge of all paper used by the Westinghouse company, will lecture on the subject of "Uses of Paper in Electrical Manufacturing and the Tests it must Meet." He is being brought to Appleton under the auspices of the Institute of Paper Chemistry since the expert position he fills provides a rare opportunity for special observation in connection with paper testing.

Invitations have been extended to representatives of all the mills who are supporting members of the Institute.

FIFTY AIR LINES

Washington—Fifty scheduled interstate passenger air transport lines are now being operated under the authority of the Aeronautics Branch of the U. S. Department of Commerce. Sixty applications have been received for permission to operate additional lines, the department says.

BLAINE SEEKING SAVING WAGE FOR AVERAGE WORKER

"Reasonable Dividend" for Investors Also Back of Plan for Commission

BY RUBY A. BLACK

Washington—A "saving wage" for workers and a "reasonable dividend" for investors in industry and in agriculture is the eventual purpose of the bill introduced by Sen. John J. Blaine of Boscebel to create a federal industrial commission.

This is the measure worked out by the Eagles fraternal order, through a national committee of which Sen. Blaine is a member, and will thus have widespread support. Rep. Louis Ludlow of Indiana, a Democrat and former newspaper man, introduced the bill in the House of Representatives.

The proposed commission would have five members appointed by the President and confirmed by the Senate, paid $12,000 a year each. No requirements as to the political parties to which the commissioners belong are put into the bill.

The work of the proposed commission is set forth in a short paragraph in the bill, reading:

"The commission is authorized and directed to make surveys, studies, and investigations of all problems relating to the stabilization of employment in industry, agriculture, and commerce in the United States with a view to formulating such plans and recommending such legislation as will enable employees to obtain a saving wage and investors a reasonable dividend."

LaFOLLETTE ABSENT

When the Senate met in the Senate and the House of Representatives on Monday, all Wisconsin members of Congress answered "present" except Sen. Robert M. LaFollette Jr. of Madison, Rep. Hubert H. Peavey of Washburn, and Rep. John C. Schafer of Milwaukee.

Sen. LaFollette and his bride were caught in a snow storm in Ohio as they were motoring to Washington, and did not arrive until Tuesday night. They thought for a while they would have to leave their car in the Buckeye State and take the train to Washington, but at last the storm abated.

Rep. Schafer was detained in Milwaukee on account of an infected foot.

Rep. Peavey hardly ever seems to be able to come down in time for the opening of Congress.

Rep. Michael R. Reilly of Fond du Lac, Wisconsin's only Democratic member, elected to succeed the late Rep. Florian Lampert, took the oath of office that day along with twelve other new members elected to succeed deceased or resigned members. It was nothing new to him, of course. They all stood in a row in front of the Speaker's dais, held up their hands, and took the oath together. Rep. Reilly was on Monday morning assigned to a pleasant office across the court from the one occupied by his predecessor, Rep. Ruth Bryan Owen of Florida having been given Rep. Lampert's office. By Tuesday he was all moved in and Harry Schler of Oshkosh, secretary to the late Rep. Lampert, and defeated candidate for the post, was installed as his secretary.

Rep. Peavey was not here, but he got two bills introduced immediately. PENSIONS FOR INDIANS

One of them provides old age pensions for Indians, amounting to not more than $1 a day when combined with any income the Indian may have for property.

Wisconsin Rapids Rallies To Beat Appleton Cagers

ORANGE QUINTET IS BEATEN IN FOURTH PERIOD; SCORE 13-8

Shieldsmen Have Many Chances to Score in First Half but Miss Hoop

WISCONSIN RAPIDS—A tired bunch of Appleton high school cagers went down to defeat here Saturday evening before the Wisconsin Rapids high school five in the first game of the local season. The score was 13 and 8.

Coming here from Stevens Point where they had opened the season the night previous the Orange invaders played the Rapids on even terms until the fourth period when they wilted and three field goals in rapid succession turned the tide in favor of the locals and gave them their first victory.

Appleton had a chance during the first half the game, to run up a big lead over the Rapids. Time after time the invaders from the Fox river valley sneaked in behind the Rapids defense for easy shots at the basket and missed.

The two teams were tied at the end of every period except the last. The count at the end of the first quarter was 3 all, at the end of the half 5 all, at the end of the third period 7 all. Here the Rapids stepped out and the game ended 13 and 8.

ARMY-NAVY GAME CLOSING GRID YEAR

Service Schools Battle Saturday in New York for Salvation Army

New York—(AP)—The most famous of football spectacles, the Army-Navy game, resumed for its 44th year today. The game is a four-year break, comes Saturday to give a final touch of color to the waning football season.

It will be played at the Yankee Stadium, New York, for the benefit of the Salvation Army's unemployment relief fund.

Navy's triumph over Pennsylvania Saturday has increased interest in the game. The Midshipmen showed unexpected strength as they gave the Quakers a 26 to 0 beating.

A victory over Penn still is not enough to place Navy on a par with its rival in the pregame calculations. Although the Midshipmen showed plenty of power and new reserve force, they have had only a mediocre season and beat a team which had had little more success while Army still can boast of having been beaten only by Notre Dame and tied by Yale.

The Cadets held a place near the top of the eastern ranking list, rivaling Colgate and Fordham for the highest honors.

Colgate still holds the topmost position among the big colleges through Saturday's 7-6 victory over New Len. Manhattan's successful try for a point and Johnny O's dash that blocked Jim Tanguay's placement in the closing minutes of the game that gave victory.

EAST-WEST BAYS NOW WILL PLAY ON NOV. 11

The annual East-West football game at Green Bay has probably passed into history and in its stead there will be inaugurated next year the East-West football game on Armistice day, Nov. 11.

Because Thanksgiving day is often marked by cold weather or heavy snows and is not a good day for the annual fracas it was decided to abandon the date in favor of armistice at a meeting of Green Bay school board members. The suggestion was made by Dr. V. W. Kelly after the game a few days ago when the mercury was flirting with zero throughout the afternoon.

The plan now needs the approval of the valley athletic conference. Conference officials meet in January.

Major League Owners Convene In New York

BY HERBERT W. BARKER Associated Press Sports Writer NEW YORK (AP)—Baseball's leaders gathered in New York today for the annual mid-winter meeting of the National and American leagues.

The selective draft, chain-store baseball and the lively ball threatened to cause the most discussion.

Although formal sessions of the two leagues begin tomorrow, two important conferences were on today's program. One of them was to bring together representatives of major league clubs and a committee from the minors for a discussion of the draft dispute.

The other was a meeting of American league managers called by the league president, Ernest Barnard, to hear suggestions that might be of benefit to the league as a whole.

There was a distance feeling among baseball men in general that the majors and the five non-draft leagues would reach a compromise some time this week.

WANT UNIVERSAL DRAFT

The majors want the five non-draft leagues to accept the universal draft, that is, they want to be able to "select" any player from these circuits—the International, Pacific coast, American association, Western and Three Eye leagues—at a fixed price just as they do from other minor league clubs. This principle the minors are ready to accept, it is stated, provided the two groups can agree on terms.

Pending settlement of the dispute, the majors on Dec. 1, severed all business dealings with the five affected leagues.

The lively ball has split the major league owners and managers into three distinct camps and all three probably will have lots to say before the meetings come to an end. In one group are those who favor the ball as it is; another includes those who would deaden the ball to and the home-run epidemic; still another would keep the ball as it is but end "pop-fly home runs" by limiting hits into certain sectors to two or three bases where they now go for home runs.

CHAIN STORE SYSTEM

The chain store system of baseball ownership came in for only desultory discussion at the minor league convention in Montreal last week but there seemed to be a suspicion in some quarters that Kenesaw M. Landis, high commissioner of baseball, was prepared to deliver another blast against it some time during the week.

If he should proponents of the system might find a worthy advocate in Branch Rickey, vice president and business manager of the St. Louis Cardinals who operates the largest chain of clubs in baseball. Rickey made two fiery speeches at the minor league convention in support of this phase of major league policies.

The National league will hold its annual meeting tomorrow and the American on Wednesday. A joint session of the two leagues will be held Thursday.

NINE GRID TEAMS ARE UNDEFEATED, UNTIED

The Rough Riders of Notre Dame head the nation's little band of undefeated and untied football teams. Only nine elevens have been able to tour through the campaign without encountering either defeat or tie.

Among these teams Utah had the best offensive record with 340 points scored. Alabama permitted only 13 opposition points to lead defensively. The undefeated and untied list follows:

W Pts. Opp. Pts.
Notre Dame	10 265 74
Monte Morris (Ills.)	9 249 25
Alabama	9 247 13
Washington State	9 218 20
Cardinal (Ills.)	9 214 24
Utah	8 340 20

ROCKNE AND IRISH CONGRATULATED AS THEY START HOME

West Coast Still Stunned at Smashing Notre Dame Victory Over U. S. C.

LOS ANGELES—(AP)—Knute Rockne's raiders from Notre Dame, having swept Southern California aside were enroute home today with two undefeated seasons, 19 straight victories, and a 27 to 0 triumph over the Trojans, to their credit.

In addition the Irish had permanent possession of the Rissman trophy, signifying that three times within a decade Notre Dame had produced the national football champions.

Meanwhile, Southern California and the far west were recovering from the stunning blow the Irish delivered Saturday, and experts, coaches and the 90,000 fans who saw Troy fall vied with each other in congratulating the victors.

Frank Carideo, the quarterback, Paul "Bucky" O'Connor, the fullback, Marchmont Schwartz, halfback, and Bert Metzger, the atom who grew to a giant in the eyes of the crowd during sixty minutes of play at hand were hailed far and wide.

Carideo's generalship was a big factor in the humbling of the Trojans, and to him went the honor of scoring the first touchdown. He took a pass from Schwartz and half-walked eight yards to play dirt.

O'Connor was the individual star. Three days before he had been a substitute halfback, although Rockne explained he spent six weeks in spring practice in the fullback berth. Saturday he was an amazing fullback. From his own 20-yard line in the first quarter he carried the ball, which he received from Marty Brill, halfback, on a reverse 80 yards for the second touchdown. Pausing at the halfway mark to out-dodge Ernie Pinkert, the Trojans' star halfback, in the third quarter he scored again after receiving a pass.

Nicholas Lukats, a substitute back, whirled over 23 yards of Trojan strewn turf for the final score. Schwartz contributed 50 yards toward the third touchdown with a long zig-zagging run.

Southern California never seriously threatened the Notre Dame goal. As many as four times the Trojans dug shallowly into Irish soil, but the advance was halted abruptly in each case.

SPIKE CARLSON NAMED U. W. HOCKEY COACH

Madison—Edwin A. (Spike) Carlson will coach the University of Wisconsin varsity hockey team this season, it was announced Saturday by George Little, director of Wisconsin athletics.

Carlson is a Wisconsin graduate who played two years of varsity hockey as a Badger and was also a member of the varsity football squad as an end under both Big John Richards and George Little when they tutored the Wisconsin gridiron hopefuls.

Coach Carlson, in addition to his playing experience, has had a fling at coaching the puck game, having acted as freshman hockey coach and assistant to Head Coach Johnny Farquhar last season.

The selection of Carlson as coach is considered a particularly happy one by Director Little as the new hockey mentor, because, although his appointment is only for the season, Carlson resides in Madison and will be able to give considerable time to the game out of season, if necessary. He is an architect by profession.

BADGERS PLAY WITH EAST IN SHRINER'S BENEFIT

Evanston, Ill.—(AP)—Eight Big Ten football stars headed by Frank Baker and Wade Woodworth, All-American selections from Northwestern, have consented to play with the all-East team in the annual Shrine hospital benefit game New Year's day at San Francisco.

Besides Baker, end, and Woodworth, guard, Gantenbein of Wisconsin, and Ely of Iowa, ends; Lubatovich of Wisconsin, and Van Bibber of Purdue, tackles; Sam Selby of Ohio State, guard, and Win Brockmeyer, Minnesota halfback, have informed coach Dick Hanley of Northwestern that they will join the squad.

Hanley is picking the Big Ten representative, and Andy Kerr of Colgate the eastern players as they did last year.

PLAY INDOOR TENNIS AT NEW LAWRENCE GYM

Indoor tennis is fast gaining favor at Lawrence college following announcement that one of the best ketchal courts will be used for the sport hereafter. The cage court is so large that a tennis court can easily be laid out on it any number of students and members of the faculty are playing daily. The court floor has been especially prepared for tennis, was having been washed off with gasoline.

Badger Cage Squad Has Only Two Veteran Players

MADISON—With the first public appearance of the University of Wisconsin basketball team last week in a practice game against the Badger freshmen, it became evident that Dr. Walter E. Meanwell, despite the fine progress his men have made in two months of practice, is again facing the problem of how to make a good little team beat good big teams.

Last year, Coach Meanwell had a small team, reinforced by one veteran, Captain Bud Foster. But Foster was not only a good big man—he was a great one. Now Foster is gone and with him, Matthussen and Foster, regular forwards last season.

This year's Badgers are all small men—not midgets but players of ordinary stature at best. Only two veterans are available—Captains Ted Chmielewski and Johnny Wagner, guards. This assures Meanwell of a sterling defense, at least until February, when Chmielewski will be graduated.

Against the frosh, Meanwell started Doug Nelson at center, Russell Tornowski and Marvin Steen at forwards, and the veterans, Paul and Chmielewski, guards. Later he inserted Harry Griswold at center.

SUNDAY SCORES Bears 21, Green Bay 0. New York 13, Brooklyn 0. Portsmouth 42, Minneapolis 6.

CHICAGO—(AP)—The Green Bay Packers, National Professional League football champions, today recovered from the most severe drubbing they have received in their past two seasons.

The Chicago Bears led by Bronko Nagurski and Red Grange, trampled to a 21 to 0 victory here yesterday over the Badger team. The Bears lost their few scoring opportunities by fumbles.

While the Chicago eleven was looked upon by sports writers as a powerful machine, the league-leading Packers were favorites to win. The defeat trimmed the Bears' margin in league percentages to a lead of but .004 over the New York Giants. The Bears' victory was reported by sports fans to have been a merited one, their team functioning perfectly.

While the famed "Jumping Joe" Savoldi Bear tenderfoot, who recently was the prima donna of Knute Rockne's all-America team, flitted over the gridiron with his new teammates, he was dwarfed in attainment by the stellar work of "Big Nag" Savoldi played but a few minutes of the game—long enough to see the Packers snatch passes from under his nose and begin a drive toward the goal. The drive ended after Nagurski replaced Savoldi.

Dick Nesbitt, former Drake player, made a run of 35 yards, for one of the Chicago touchdowns while Luke Johnson took two passes from Brumbaugh for the other markers.

Leo Diegel Wins AT OPEN TOURNAMENT

Defeats Al Espinosa at San Francisco 6 and 4; Leo Gets $1,600

San Francisco—(AP)—Shooting sub-par golf, Leo Diegel, Argua Calento professional, has defeated Al Espinosa, Chicago, 6 and 4 to win the first annual San Francisco open which played golf tournament.

Espinosa had difficulty in the final play yesterday in spite of the fact that the news of the death of his sister, Mrs. Lydia Sorrell, in Los Angeles, was withheld from him until after the match.

Mrs. Sorrell was accidentally shot and killed in her home Saturday night when a rifle which her husband was cleaning was discharged. When the four "bye" holes had been played, Diegel had a 141 for the 36-hole match, one under par. A little on the final hole turned the trick, Espinosa used eight more strokes.

Out of prize money totaling $7,500 Diegel received $1,600 and Espinosa, $1,065. George Von Elm of Detroit and Joe Exar, Chicago, were eliminated in the semi-finals, received $522 each.

Twenty-eight games of 125 points each will be played over an eleven-day period. A total of $14,500, exclusively of gate receipts, will be distributed among the eight players.

Tonight's match brings together Taborski and Boatman, tomorrow, Taborski and Dolph; Allen faces Lauri and Rudolph battles Natalie.

STRIBLING, GRIFFITH TAPER OFF FOR BOUT

Chicago—(AP)—W. L. "Young" Stribling and Gerald Ambrose "Tuffy" Griffith of Sioux City, Ia., rushed today into the stretch of training for their important heavyweight battle in the Stadium Friday night.

Griffith had two or three more days of intensive effort on his schedule, while Stribling, satisfied with his condition, planned to keep his edge. A little betting was done on the basis of 2 to 1 on the Southerner.

Chapter 33
CHANG AIMS TO PLEASE
CHANG spoke very slowly, as if choosing his words, and his pronunciation was so perfect that only the slightly singsong intonation of his voice betrayed his race. But what intrigued Dagger most was his choice of the word "come." It was as if he had expected her.

"Thank you for answering my chit so soon, General," Dagger responded. "I didn't expect a personal call."

"You are the friend of my friend," he returned.

He lifted a hand, and snapped a short order over his shoulder, which cleared the hall of all its occupants, including Mr. Araki.

"If I may, Mrs. Vaneering?"

And he stepped across the threshold, closing the door after him.

"I have ordered tea to be sent up," he added as an afterthought. "The cook who prepares my tea accompanied me."

Dagger didn't know whether to be honored or amused.

"But surely that wasn't necessary, General," she objected.

"I have many enemies," he remarked sententiously. "In China poison continues to be the final resort of the defeated."

He dropped into the chair she indicated, contriving to invest the act with an unusual degree of grace--and then, with the naivete of a child, inquired: "Do I speak your language well?"

"Very well," Dagger hastened to assure him. "As well as though you had known it all your life."

He sighed, rather like a young man who has just received a note from his beloved.

"Blaine Howard taught me--that is, he began my instruction. Other teachers have followed him, but none helped me so much as he. In many other ways, also, I am fond of him," Mrs. Vaneering said.

"You are fond of him?" she asked, startled.

He waved a languid hand, silver-tipped fingers glinting grotesquely.

"I had forgotten. Pardon me if I have aroused any--ah--old griefs. But with me a friend never dies."

"That is like what an old Buddhist priest told me in India," she exclaimed eagerly. "He, too, was a friend of Blaine's."

"Ah, yes! The old lama of Lahore," Chang dismissed Gulum Buk with another sweep of silver-tipped fingers. "I have heard of him. Preacher of a creed of abnegation. That is not my belief, Mrs. Vaneering. I have learned from experience that a man wins what he takes."

"There are different beliefs for different men," Dagger reminded him. "Gulum Buk is happy with just you, I daresay, die happy with yours."

"Happy?" Chang considered. "Scarcely. No man who is ambitious can be altogether happy. Were he, his ambition would die, and that having been the mainspring of his life, he would cease to have a reason for living."

"That is a material point of view," Dagger protested. "Possession is not everything."

"I should hazard the guess that you, Mrs. Vaneering, possess much," he commented.

"True, yet--"

"If you will permit me: I have known what it is to possess nothing beyond the barest necessities--and very little of those. The experience is essential if you would comprehend the realities of life."

The restrained dignity of his manner impressed Dagger, and she remained silent as a knock on her door ushered in several servants carrying the materials for tea on gorgeously lacquered trays. These they set upon a table, and withdrew, obsequiously. Chang rose, and poured hot water from a pot on a tiny brazier over the leaves in a bowl, then strained off the golden liquid into a second bowl.

"This is the essence of the gods--if there be gods," he said, presenting it. "From my own gardens in the South. Once it was reserved for the Son of Heaven. Now, Chang presents it to his friends."

The irony did not escape her.

"You have been very successful, General," she answered. "But can you be sure that success has meant happiness to you? Would you not have been happier, possibly, as a coolie in those tea-gardens?"

"No," he retorted promptly, "for I am not so constituted."

"Blaine Howard would not accept your belief," she replied. "Nor should I."

"That is true as to Mr. Howard," he agreed. "I offered him power, a plane with my owl. He would not accept. The old lama had bent his mind the other way."

"Ah, yes, the Way!"

"I understand," assented Chang. "But do not be misled by the idea. There are many Ways--nearly as many as there are men, for no two of us walk the same road."

"I walk Blaine Howard's road," she retorted proudly.

"So? I should have guessed otherwise. He rose again, impressively tall, regal, self-contained. "We have much to discuss with each other. For the first time his seamless yellow cheeks wrinkled in a smile. "Those who disagree have most to impart--and to learn. But I do not think we shall really disagree."

"Why not?" challenged Dagger.

"Because you are of those whose feet seek the Way of Power," he returned. "And the man who might have set your feet upon another Way," he hesitated perceptibly--"is gone," he concluded.

"But in my time I go, too," she said.

"Not from Sung-fu so soon?" he questioned.

"I came here to learn of Blaine Howard, not to find a different Way," she said.

"I will tell you of him," he promised. "and whatever Way you take must be of your own choice."

She drew herself erect with a touch of haughtiness.

"It is not necessary for you or anyone to tell me so."

"Have I not said you were of those whose feet sought the Way of Power?" he replied, making no effort to conceal the admiring light in his narrow eyes. "You were born to be a Princess, Mrs. Vaneering, a ruler of men, the mother of Kings."

"To the door before she could think of an answer.

"Oh, your tea things," she cried after him.

He bowed on the threshold.

"Since they have known your presence they are too good for my humble abode," he said. "Please honor me by accepting them as an appreciation of your wisdom and beauty."

"My glory," Dagger murmured to herself, lapsing into the favorite expression of Aunt Esby, as the door closed upon the Tu-chun's tall figure.

In the morning Mr. Araki waited upon Dagger again, very much impressed.

"Motah-car come," he announced. "Driver say Tu-chun sent it for you."

She didn't know whether to be amused or annoyed, but on second thought, concluded that she must make allowance for the customs of the East, as well as for the fact that Chang probably intended the gesture as a tribute to Howard. And if she had entertained any doubt as to the propriety of accepting the Tu-chun's courtesy, they were dispelled when she discovered the advantages of riding in one of his cars, with two smartly-uniformed soldiers on the driver's seat.

Even the American Consul snatched out of his office to receive her a mixture of satire and humor glinting in his eyes.

"Joined the harm, Mrs. Vaneering?" he inquired.

"Why? Is this one of the perquisites?" she retorted.

"Only for the Number One wife I'd say."

"Will it ruin my reputation?" she asked merrily.

"Lord, no. But I'll bet you must last year's hat Chang has intentions. You're the first woman, wasn't an official's wife, he's put himself out for like this."

U. S. MAY NEED BIG LOAN FOR RELIEF BILLS

Congress Won't Keep Measures Down to President's Figures

BY DAVID LAWRENCE
Copyright, 1930, by Post Pub. Co.
Washington—Government finances are drifting into a position which will either require the flotation of a large loan or an appeal to the states to take a larger share of the burden of relieving unemployment unless, of course, the business situation improves materially in the next few months.

Congress has been in session only a week but it is apparent that pressure from constituents is so intense that the administration's requests for restraint in expenditure are not being met. The vote of the senate committee to increase the drought appropriation from twenty-five million to sixty million is a case in point. Immediately after this action was taken, the administration let it be known that the one hundred and fifty million dollars already planned for public works was not included in the original estimates and that the total deficit for the current year would approximate three hundred and thirty million dollars. This information was expected to act as a stabilizing influence in repressing the congressional tendency to appropriate funds right and left to take care of the emergency.

Moreover, the government aid has been in the form of loans to stimulate agricultural production or else to help producers hold their crops, but the new loan of sixty million dollars, which the senate agriculture committee voted unanimously, would permit farmers to borrow money for the purchase of food. The administration believes this is an unwise precedent. It is the nearest thing to the debt system, in vogue in Great Britain, that has been suggested.

MAY REQUIRE LOAN

News of the size of the prospective deficit spread around the capitol and may have an effect on the attitude of the house as well as the conferees but it is evident that if congress keeps on disregarding the requests of President Hoover that appropriations be kept within the chief executive will be compelled to ask for authority to borrow money.

Some determination of the question of revenues to take care of the deficit in the present fiscal year will have to be made very soon because it is evident congress is going to appropriate more money for the emergency. It would not be surprising if the whole question of expenditure to take care of the needs of the country should bring up more quickly than was anticipated the proposal of a billion dollar bond issue. Incidentally the idea of abandoning the sinking fund on the war debt or any part of it has been given up because of the fact that such an action might be the signal for a request on the part of foreign governments for a moratorium or a suspension of payments this year.

The normal way to take care of the deficit, if it cannot be absorbed by current revenues between now and next June, is to borrow. The treasury department, however, doesn't need to put on much pressure to get a loan and it is believed that short term certificates maturing in three years could be floated any time between now and next July and bring in at once sufficient funds to care for current needs.

SEEKS INCREASE IN PENSION FOR WOMAN

(Post-Crescent Wash. Bureau)
Washington—An increase in pension for Mrs. Frances M. Turney of New London is proposed in a bill introduced by Rep. George J. Schneider of Appleton and referred to the Committee on Invalid Pensions of the House of Representatives, of which Rep. John M. Nelson of Madison is chairman.

Mrs. Turney is old and nearly blind. She is now getting only $40 a month and the bill would increase her pension to $50. It is believed that this private bill for her will be incorporated into an omnibus pension bill to be reported by Rep. Nelson later and passed by Congress.

Mrs. Turney is the widow of James C. Turney, who served during the Civil War in Company I, Third Wisconsin Volunteer Cavalry.

Scientists in other parts of Europe are taking sides on the question.

Financial Rumors Being Checked At Washington

Washington—(AP)—Informal inquiries are being made by the state department to ascertain the source of a series of persistent financial rumors which have proved embarrassing to the government during the past three weeks.

Beginning with the unofficial visit to the capital of Dr. Hjalmar Schacht, former president of the German Reichsbank, a flood of rumors and counter-rumors with international financial as their center have caused considerable concern to state officials.

RAILROAD STOCKS FAIL TO IMPROVE DURING PAST WEEK

Hoover's Message, Commerce Commission's Report Don't Help

BY CHARLES F. SPEARE
Copyright, 1930, by Cons. Press
Wall Street, New York—The entire lack of response in railroad securities last week to the favorable attitude taken in President Hoover's message to congress on the consolidation question and in the interstate commerce commission's report on "consolidation" and on "monopoly" that investors in this group of stocks and bonds are more concerned with the immediate question of earnings than with movements that may later develop to stabilize the transportation industry and provide a higher rate of return on the property investment of the carriers.

Not only were railroad stocks at the end of last week at the lowest average price since the summer of 1925, but second-grade railroad bonds were off from 15 to 20 points from the level at which they were issued two and three years ago. This includes issues unaffected by the prospect that they may be taken from the legal list in New York state, but moving downward primarily in sympathy with junior stocks, whose dividends at present appear insecure.

$343,000,000 DECREASE

Figures which have just been compiled by the bureau of railway economics indicate that, for the ten months to Oct. 31, the class I railroads of the United States have experienced a decrease of $343,000,000 in their net operating income. This represents a 30 per cent shrinkage from the same period in 1929. In the east the decrease was $175,000,000 or 30 per cent, in the west $127,000,000, also 30 per cent, and in the south $41,000,000 or 37 per cent. The decrease for October alone was 27 per cent, or slightly less than the average for the ten months.

This great loss in amount available for fixed charges and dividends is the basis for the current liquidation in railroad securities by individuals and institutions. The seriousness of the situation is expressed in another way; namely, in the rate of return on the property investment of the carriers which, for ten months, has been slightly over 34 per cent compared with 4.62 per cent last year and the established figure of 52 per cent, representing the reasonable return on property investment established under the transportation act.

ONLY ONE EXCEPTION

Only one geographical district this year has exceeded the 52 per cent rate. This is the Pecos region, where the percentage of return has been 7.34 per cent.

The next most satisfactory territory is that in New England, whose railroads show earnings equivalent to 4.70 per cent on property investment. The minimum is equivalent to 4.70 per cent on property investment. The minimum is found in the southern district, with a percentage of 2.67. Close to it is that of the northwestern region, where earnings for the ten months were 2.77 per cent. The central western region shows 2.66 per cent, the central eastern district 2.63 and the southwestern region 2.31 per cent.

A slight improvement in all of these ratios is looked for when the November and December statements are compiled.

Unless a barrier is erected by the landlord once each year for 24 hours on a specified day the county can claim a right of way. Now the store is behind the county's barrier.

PATENT AIDS WON'T HELP JOBLESS, CLAIM

Milwaukee—(AP)—The unemployment problem will not be solved by quick patent remedy, but by the steady work of institutions which will deal with its fundamental causes, George P. Hambrecht, Wisconsin state director of vocational education, said today in his opening remarks as president of the National Association State Directors of Vocational Education. The association opened a three-day conference here today.

Speaking specifically of the vocational school as a fundamental institution, Mr. Hambrecht said: "It must continue to keep young people from rusting untrained into industry to compete against adults. It must continue to furnish to young people a thoughtful and careful employment service. It must continually study the occupation of the community and the world beyond. It must make coordinating visits to industry to watch not only the individual youth whom the school has placed on the job, but also the trends of industry and the industrial changes which swiftly changing demands upon the part time school."

"Adjusting itself constantly to a changing occupational world, it must continue to give youth studies in occupations, through courses, specific training courses, and a general background of knowledge of present day civilization which will enable each one to take and keep a satisfactory place in industrial and social life."

CONTROVERSY ON UNEMPLOYMENT IS STILL BAFFLING

Government Officials, Labor Leaders Disagree on Figures

BY J. C. ROYLE
Copyright, 1930, by Cons. Press
Washington—(AP)—Controversy is still raging over the employment situation. Some of the high officials of the department of commerce feel personally that, like many a modern mess, the situation is not so bad as it is painted. State and national labor leaders declare it is getting worse. National education authorities minimize its seriousness.

Statisticians in the states now working on a census of unemployment admit it is a most difficult task to arrive at accurate figures. They say that a man out of work may be counted in one center jump into his flannel and be counted again in an adjoining town.

Many federal officials agree that the total number of people out of work is extremely large but they call attention to the fact that there are no small number who not only are out of work now but who have been out of work for years. Their chances of getting a job are slim even in the best of times and their anxiety to secure one does not keep them awake nights.

AT AUTHORITIES DIFFER

One authority places the real total of those who have lost their jobs and have tried to obtain others unsuccessfully at less than 5,000,000. On the other hand William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, estimates the total unemployed at 4,500,000, exclusive of farm labor and white collar workers.

Those who disagree with Mr. Green assert that in his figures there is no allowance for seasonal variation. They declare the time of year has now arrived when outdoor workers of all descriptions usually encounter at least temporary unemployment. Work has ceased in the harvest fields. Building operations in the north are never as extensive in December and November as in other months. Work on the highways in the north has been checked by cold and snow and the men employed on the Great Lakes have closed their season.

No one should minimize the seriousness of the position of labor but to over-emphasize it is to increase its dangerousness, according to those who are doing most to provide jobs for the jobless. This view in effect is subscribed to, to some extent, by the American Federation of Labor itself. The federation states that if the 25,000,000 workers who have jobs feel that a layoff may come to them at any time, they are inclined to cut down their purchases to save money.

A cut of $1 per worker would equal the wages of 250,000 men for a month, the federation asserts.

IMPROVEMENT SEEN

Officials, state and federal, who are striving to relieve the condition of the workers, point out that if an erroneous idea as to the total unemployed is disseminated, employed themselves will be inclined to curtail operations and thereby cut down the number of jobs available. The Federation of Labor says formally, "Domestic signs of improvement are multiplying in individual lines. The upward turn in textiles, both silk and cotton, is encouraging. Building has increased slightly. There are signs that the price decline is better bottom. Business men are beginning to take out more loans and order more machine tools, which means a prospect of improved efficiency and increasing operation."

MANY SHARES REACH LOWEST PRICE FOR YEAR WITH SELLING RAIL, OIL AND SPECIALTY SHARES ARE HARDEST HIT BY WEAKNESS

BY CLAUDE A. JAGGER
Associated Press Staff Editor
New York.—(P)—The stock market ran into sloppy weather at the beginning of the new week today. The sprinkle of selling which appeared during the latter part of last week developed into a moderate downpour, and several of the rail, oil and specialty shares retreated to lower levels than those of Nov. 10, then the market as a whole reached the year's minimum. Most of the plivotal shares, however, were well supported above their bottom prices.

Baltimore and Ohio dropped 5 points, and shares declined 2 to 4 to new minimums included New York Central, Erie, Frisco, Great Northern Preferred, Rock Island, Southern Railway, Western Union, Case, Eastern Kodak, Sun Oil, and Prairie Pipe Line. In smaller declines, Standard of California, Prairie Oil, Phillips and American Republics reached new lows. Other shares losing about 2 to 4 points included American Can, American Telephone, North American, Chesapeake, Corp., Johns Manville, and Union Pacific. U. S. Steel sold off 13 points, then rallied.

RAILS ARE WEAK

Weakness of the rail shares seemed to be merely a continuation of the downward movement of the previous week. News of the interstate commerce commission's order seeking to force Pennsylvania to divest itself of its interest in the Lehigh and Wash-co could scarcely have been regarded as an encouraging action, since it had been expected for some time. The recent decline in this group appears to have been in a large measure a response to the publicity given the carriers' troubles in connection with the demand for revision of the transportation act. Furthermore, there is still a prospect that a few bond issues may become ineligible for New York savings banks, as a result of the drop in earnings, although most issues that seemed to be in danger of that some weeks ago are now regarded as secure.

Selling of the oil shares has been in response to Wall Street rumors of further price reductions. Although pronounced progress has been made in curtailment of crude output, this is the low consumption season, and the industry is still unsettled. The first nine months earnings statement of Richfield, showing a deficit of about $470,000 after payment of preferred dividends, presented a revealing commentary on the situation. The company explained that the crude production curtailment program had obliged it to close about 45 per cent of its output, and purchase in the market nearly 70 per cent of its requirements.

There were several items in the news news, however, exchanging the prospects of stabilizing commodity prices.

Javan and Cuban sugar producers have at last come to an agreement. The department of agriculture's efforts to induce farmers to feed wheat to livestock appear to be meeting with considerable success. The department estimates that 236,000,000 bushels will be fed during the current crop year, against only 90,000,000 bushels in the preceding year. The department's estimate of the cotton crop as of Dec. 1 was announced at 14,430,000 bales, a reduction of 155,000 bales from the estimate of a month previously, and 535,000 bales less than the crop of 1929.

The money market continued almost stationary, with call loan officially at 2 per cent. The best commentary of the weekend on the short term credit situation was in the 13 per cent rate for the treasury's offering of six-month bills, the best rate the treasury has ever obtained.

STOCKS LOWER WITH WAVE OF LIQUIDATION

New York.—(P)—The combined pressure of liquidation and short selling weighed down curb prices today, although only in inactive issues did the losses attain much size. Activity was brisk for a time during the forenoon, but the pace became much quieter when the offerings decreased.

Oil and natural gas shares proved rather vulnerable. Cities Service broke nearly a point, while Standard of Kentucky and National Fuel Gas were even heavier. Humble made a new low with a small decline. Vacuum, which has been showing considerable resistance, was again firm.

In the utilities, recessions generally amounted to less than a point, despite the rather large turnover in the group. Electric Bond and Share went below 43 but was well supported on the reaction. United Light & Heat went close to its year's low of 24 when it yielded a major fraction.

CHICAGO STOCKS SAG BELOW SATURDAY CLOSE

Chicago.—(P)—Prices on the Chicago Stock exchange sagged today to below the closing levels of Saturday's session. Trading was apathetic.

Midwest opened at 15, off 1, but maintained that level on a relatively large turnover. Insull Utilities sold off fractionally to 37, and Commonwealth Edison fluctuated slightly below its previous close.

Cleaver Combine slumped a point and a half reflecting apprehension over divided action to be taken at a directors' meeting tomorrow. Investment trust shares were inactive and somewhat lower. Automotives were weak in a small turnover.

SOMERS CABBAGE

Somers.—(P)—Holland cabbage $14.00 cwt. quiet. Onions $100 cwt. steady.

FEWER ARRIVALS, CATTLE STRONGER

Reduction Is Centered About Chicago Market With Drop of 30,000

Chicago.—(P)—Stronger markets resulted from curtailed livestock marketings. The reduction was particularly centered in the Chicago market, only 92,000 animals being estimated to arrive against 123,000 a week ago. Cattle receipts of 15,000 were little more than half the number offered on the previous Monday and included less than 200 head billed straight to packers. Strong values were quotable for good to choice steers of the small weight types.

Hogs got away to a 5-10c higher start as compared with the general run of prices obtainable on Friday. Packers' direct receipts from outside points accounted for 29,000 out of the 55,000 hogs arriving here. Shippers favored the 190-220 lb. butchers paying $3.25 to $3.50 for many loads, while 8.25 was quoted for underweights.

Packers received 6,000 lambs on through billings. Fed westerners were held at 9.00, though packers refused to go above 8.75 at the outset.

CHICAGO LIVESTOCK

Chicago.—(P)—(U.S.D.A.)—Hogs, 55,000 including 29,000 direct; fairly active; mostly 5c to 10c higher than Friday's average. Lighter weights steady; top 8.40 bulk 8.20-8.70 lbs. 8.25; packing sows 7.15-7.65.

Light hogs, good and choice 140-160 lbs. 8.15-8.55; light weight 160-200 lbs. 8.20-8.40; medium weight 200-250 lbs. 8.20-8.40; heavy weight 250-350 lbs. 8.10-8.35; packing sows medium and good 275-300 lbs. 7.10-7.55; slaughter pigs, good and choice 100-130 lbs. 8.00-8.35.

Cattle 15,000; calves 2,000; lower grades and feed steers plentiful; lower weight to 250 lower on common to medium grade offerings; good to choice kinds scarce and fully steady; early top yearlings 13.85; heavy 12.50; better market on she stock and bulls; stockers steady at 7.50 down to 6.50.

CORN MARKET IS OVERSOLD AS LATE BUYING APPEARS

Numerous Traders Who Were Selling Turn to Buying Side Today

BY JOHN P. BOUGHAN
Associated Press Market Editor
Chicago.—(P)—Aggressive late buying today of corn futures delivered caught the market in a bullish condition, and brought about a sharp rally in prices. The fact that the corn visible supply total showed only a small increase of 11,000 bushels for the week was construed as bullish. Numerous traders who recently were conspicuous sellers of corn switched today to the buying side.

Enlarging stocks of wheat Liverpool and elsewhere in Great Britain counted as a bearish factor relative to wheat prices. Furthermore, world shipments of wheat showed a decided increase both as compared with last week and a year ago. Meanwhile, purchasing attributed chiefly to the grain stabilization corporation, a farm board ally, continued to hold May wheat anchored at 81c and 81c for old and new style contracts respectively. On the other hand, the market made no apparent response to an official estimate that as much as 236,000,000 bushels of domestic wheat would be fed this season.

The estimate that 236,000,000 bushels of wheat would be utilized in the United States as feed rather than for human consumption is the highest total which has yet been mentioned in this connection either by public or private experts. The estimate is based on reports from farmers, feed manufacturers and commercial poultrymen. Last year, the government reports that only 90,000,000 bushels of wheat was used as feed. Corn and oats values went way with wheat. Provisions kept about steady in the absence of any important selling.

BROWNE PROPOSES $500,000,000 FOR ROAD CONSTRUCTION

Wants Appropriation of $250,000,000 Annually for Two Years

BY RUBY A. BLACK
(Post-Crescent Washington Correspondent)

Washington — Jobs for jobless workers and roads for roadless farmers were urged by Rep. Edward B. Browne of Waupaca in a speech before the House of Representatives advocating the appropriation of $250,000,000 a year for the next two years for road building.

Of this fund 50 per cent would be spent on trunk roads in the federal highway system and 50 per cent on the rural mail farm-to-market roads, apportioned as federal highways and is now apportioned under the law. Authorization of these appropriations is provided in a bill introduced by Rep. Browne when congress convened Monday.

Of these roads, the federal government would contribute 80 per cent and the state 20 per cent, whereas under existing federal aid, the states and municipalities, and counties spend $20 on roads for every $1 contributed by Uncle Sam, Rep. Browne said.

"In my opinion," Rep. Browne said, "there is no public work which the government can engage in where the money expended will help as many and diversified industries as the money expended in building our highways. The remotest section of every county of our 48 states will receive the immediate benefits of this appropriation not only in the expenditure of money for labor but in the improvement of roads over which the people will travel 865 days in the year in all kinds of weather in the night-time as well as in the day-time and the 42,750 United States rural mail carriers will traverse daily.

BUYING AID, CLAIM
"The passage of this bill will mean the purchase of tractors, trucks, gas engines, cement, cement mixers, gravel and dozens of other kinds of road machinery and materials used in road-making and benefit the railroads in hauling the material."

The federal government, he argued, should build interstate trunk roads, giving for example the fact that in a hundred days in the summer season 4,500,000 people entered Wisconsin from other states, 19,000,000 motorists visited the national parks, busses operated over 49,362 miles of exclusively interstate routes in 1928.

Quoting President Hoover's 1929 message to congress urging expansion of the roadbuilding program, "particularly with a view of stimulating the improvement of farm-to-market roads," Rep. Browne said that with 3,500,000 people out of work in this country, now is the time to carry out the president's suggestion.

Improvement of roads would save the motorists of the country $900,000,000 a year in wear and tear on their 30,000,000 automobiles and trucks caused by poor roads, or $30 a year per car. Railroads, he said, keep their road beds in repair as well as their rolling stock, but the rolling stock of the highways is almost 100 per cent perfect while the roads over which they move are not 25 per cent perfect.

Rep. Browne proposed that the $500,000,000 which passage of his bill would cost the government be provided by reducing the annual payments on the national debt, which now amount to a billion dollars.

Here's the reason every can of HILLS BROS COFFEE is so fresh

As fast as Hills Bros. Coffee comes from the roasters which produce the famous flavor, it is packed in vacuum cans. By this process, air, which destroys the flavor of coffee, is taken out of the can and kept out. No air-tight can will keep coffee fresh. Hills Bros. vacuum can is easily opened with the key.

Controlled Roasting gives Hills Bros. Coffee a flavor no other coffee has.
